OFFICER KILLS CYCLIST

EASTMAN IS AGAIN ON STAND

(Dalton Defense Asks Water Co. Official if He Is Addicted to "Periodicals")

Sensation Sprung When Third Week of Alleged Bribery Case Is Opened

Shortly after the opening of the Dalton trial this morning Attorney Fairall for the defense announced that he desired to have Vice-President S. B. Eastman of the Spring Valley Water Company recalled because he wished to cross-examine him further. He requested the district attorney to produce him on the stand and Hynes stated that they would telephone for him to come immediately. Just before the close of the morning session Eastman made his appearance upon the stand and was propounded questions by Fairall, the purpose of which was to have the representative of the Spring Valley Water Company admit that he was a drinking man and that he was in the habit of going on periodicals and especially so on each Saturday night.

BRANDED INSULT.

Hynes declared that the question was insulting to the witness and immediately there was a sensation of suppressed excitement experienced throughout the room. Hynes objected to the question, but Fairall sought to show that it was allowable and quoted from a law book on the subject to the effect that where it is shown that a person is of a dissipated character, the testimony of such would be affected by that characteristic. Judge Brown strictly dissented from the theory of the attorney for the defense, declaring that the question at the present time was highly improper because nothing had been shown in the preceding examination to effect the standing of the witness in the court.

He admitted that under certain circumstances that it was allowable to show the character of a witness, but that nothing thus far had been done in this case. The court was adjourned, however, shortly after noon and Brown said that he would consider a paragraph on the admissibility of the questions which had been suggested to him by Fairall, who at the same time gave the authority for the section referred to.

Hynes showed great indignation at the question propounded by Fairall, and declared that it was both ungentlemanly and unprofessional.

LEAPS TO FEARFUL DEATH

Samuel Kramer Plunges From Four-Story Building to Street Below

Crazed Peddler Ends Life at 1:30 in Morning After Reassuring His Wife

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—After speaking to his wife, as he left his room in the apartment at 190 1/2 Valley street at 1:30 this morning, Samuel Kramer, a peddler, 34 years old, went to the roof and committed suicide by hurling himself to the street below.

Mrs. Kramer was awakened by the noise made by her husband as he arose from his couch, but did not think to prevent him leaving, and was horrified a few moments later when informed that he was dead.

Kramer, who had frequently threatened to kill himself, went to the roof of the four-story building. There were few persons on the street, but several saw him jump and fall to his death on the pavement below.

Kramer is believed to have been mentally deranged. For some time he was under observation at the Central emergency hospital and his mania at that time was placed at suicidal. The physicians, however, did not find him insane and he was discharged.

His wife was so overcome after learning of the death of her husband this morning that she was unable to make a statement. Deputy Coroner Quinlan took charge of the remains.

Powder Explodes; One Dead, Another Dying

Death in Awful Form Comes to Two Miners Near Camp of Greensburg.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 10.—In their efforts to divide a keg of powder in a fair and square manner, Vending Goolish was blown to atoms, and John Semench is dying of terrible burns in a local hospital. The men had worked together as miners near Greensburg and were dividing a keg of powder. They knew but one way to make a fair measurement. Placing the keg on a table, the men stood before it. Goolish took out a handful and placed it on the table beside him. Semench did the same. They continued to do so until only a handful remained. Not knowing how to divide the latter it was decided to set it off. Unthinkingly Goolish touched a match to it. There was a flash, and the large pile of powder also exploded.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Because 15-year-old Madeline Ritz spurned the love of her former sweetheart, Peter Wick, 17 years old, he pulled a pistol from his pocket and shot her last night. Passersby who had paused to listen to his ardent pleading, saw him kneel in supplication to the girl just before he shot her. Wick was locked up.

VICTIMS OF WRECK ARE FOUND

All of Santa Rosa's Passengers Accounted for by Officials of Steamship Company

Captain Faria Arrives to Face Investigation Conducted by Federal Officials

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Every passenger on the steamer Santa Rosa, wrecked near Point Arguello, has been accounted for, according to a statement given out today by C. D. Dunann, general passenger agent of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company. C. H. Stark, Mrs. C. L. Payne and Mrs. S. Payne, the three reported missing yesterday, have been found. Stark decided not to take the trip at the last moment and had his ticket redeemed at the local office. Mrs. S. Payne also was not aboard the steamer, while Mrs. C. L. Payne was rescued without mishap and is now in Santa Barbara.

This report of the passenger department confines the fatalities to one officer and three seamen who were drowned when a life boat was crushed against the side of the steamer.

FARIA ARRIVES.

Captain J. O. Faria, master of the Santa Rosa, arrived here today on an early train and went immediately to the company's head offices. He appeared worn out in body and mind and anxious to avoid interviews.

In regard to the charge that he had been instructed by wireless by the company officials not to land his passengers, but to hold them for the steamer President, Faria replied that he had nothing to say, but he made a vehement denial of the charge that he and his officers were intoxicated while on duty.

The statement of Barney Frankel, the wireless operator, that orders were received to keep the passengers on board, will be investigated by United States Inspectors Bolles and Bulger, so they said today. They furthermore announced that if such a message was sent, the case would be turned over to the United States Attorney General.

CONFERENCE HELD.

A conference was held by the inspectors today, who set the preliminary inquiry for tomorrow morning. Whether or not to file direct charges of negligence against the vessel's officers, dispensing with the preliminary inquiry is now being considered.

The first comprehensive statement which has been given out by the company was made this morning by Acting General Manager T. H. Cooper, of the Pacific Coast Steamship Co., and J. E. Wilson, another official of the corporation. Cooper was at first inclined to be reticent, and declared that at present the company was unwilling to answer the allegations made against it by passengers and other parties, but later permitted Wilson to explain the situation regarding the passengers.

EXPECTED TODAY.

"Until Captain Faria arrives from the south I prefer not to discuss the orders which were sent to him from this office, or to make any general statement of our position," said Cooper. "I have done everything we could for the passengers, and our records at the present time show only one person unaccounted for. We feel that everything possible has been done that could be done under the circumstances."

Sheriff of Imperial County and Men Depart in Auto in Search of William Wolfe.

SAN DIEGO, July 10.—An indication that the trail of William Wolfe, who is suspected of killing the two Overman children near Calexico a few days ago, led in this direction, was afforded by the presence here of M. Meadows, Sheriff of Imperial county, and three members of his posse, Fred Fuller of El Centro and S. E. Bragg and Lee Ferrall of Calexico.

They departed in their automobile yesterday and refused to reveal what road they meant to take in leaving this city.

Deliver Mail for Quarter of Century

Middletown, Conn., Celebrates 24 Years of Service of Three Gray-Haired Postmen.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., July 10.—When the free delivery of letters was first installed in this city 24 years ago today, three veterans of the civil war, Michael S. Dunn, John Slavin and James Daming were appointed by the postmaster.

These three men, now gray-haired and stoop-shouldered from their quarter century of work, carrying delivery bags, are still covering their routes, and today the entire city joined in celebrating their 25 years of service.

'Jack' Mattingly, Sports Writer, Reports Off

Well Known Newspaper Man of Middle West Victim of Appendicitis.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 10.—John R. Mattingly, sporting editor on a local paper, died this morning of appendicitis. He was 32 years of age and was formerly employed in the postoffice at Washington, Ind. He was operated upon at a hospital a week ago and shortly after the operation was married to Mrs. Josephine Kiltieson of this city, upon what proved to be his death bed. The remains will be sent to his former home at Washington, Ind.

YOUTH SHOT DIES OF WOUND

Robert Freudenthal Expires After Exciting Battle With Patrolman H. W. Teeple

Tragic Outcome of Motorcyclist's Attempt to Resist Arrest by Two Policemen

My name is Robert Freudenthal. I am 19 years of age and live at 3619 Grove street, Oakland. I was going about 20 miles—no, 15 miles per hour. My light went out. A cop ran out and grabbed me; there were two of them. We all lit on the street. Then he got up. He drew a gun. I had one and I drew. The gun was not concealed; and I backed off and was going to give an account of myself later because I did not have bail money. And then he shot me. He shot me twice, and when I stumbled I pulled the trigger. The officer shot twice. He got me the second shot, only one officer shooting, as the other went over to the telephone. I only shot once. Just as I stumbled I dropped the gun somewhere. I had an extra magazine in my pocket.

Inspector Richard McSorley then said to Freudenthal: "You have been informed that you are making this your dying statement, and that you are telling the truth, and that this is the absolute truth." Freudenthal then said "Yes."

Patrolman Harry W. Teeple last night shot down Robert Freudenthal, a young electrician of 3619 Grove street, after the latter had engaged him in a revolver duel at Claremont avenue and Forrest street in resisting arrest. Freudenthal died after being operated upon at the Merritt hospital, a bullet wound in the abdomen proving fatal. Patrolman Teeple was called in by Chief of Police Adelbert Wilson this morning and charged with manslaughter. He was released on his own recognizance.

RESISTED ARREST.

Freudenthal was shot when he resisted arrest for riding a motorcycle without a light. According to the patrolman and several witnesses of the affair, Freudenthal opened fire on the patrolman with an automatic revolver before Teeple fired a shot. In his dying statement, however, Freudenthal charged Teeple with firing the first shot.

Freudenthal was riding a double-seated motorcycle with Alfred Barnett of 142 Locksley avenue, and was accosted at Forrest street and Claremont avenue by Patrolman John E. Gannaw and Teeple. When Gannaw attempted to halt the machine, as it was driving about twenty miles an

Dr. Butler Resigns From N. E. A. Board

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—The resignation of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University of New York from the board of trustees of the National Education Association, was received and accepted at the annual meeting of the board of directors today. J. Stanley Brown of Peoria, Ill., was elected to succeed Dr. Butler. The remainder of the board continues in office.

Heat-Crazed Man Tries To Direct Steel Trust

NEW YORK, July 10.—Business in the executive offices of the United States steel corporation was moving along in its accustomed complacency today when a man giving his name as C. E. Piper of Atlanta, Ga., walked briskly into Chairman Gary's room and announced that he was now in charge of the corporation's affairs. He followed his declaration by calling a meeting of the board of directors. When the executive force overcame its surprise Piper was escorted from the building and taken to Bellevue for examination. It is supposed he was overcome by the heat.

stances, but later we may have something more to say."

HIDE NAME OF WOMAN.

"We certainly had a list of all those who sailed on the Santa Rosa," he explained, "and by means of this and with the cooperation of our several agents we have been enabled to account for all."

"The persons mentioned as being missing may have originally taken reservations and then given them up again. The name of Miss Mooney was reported to the Santa Rosa as having been on the Santa Rosa at all. Most of the passengers left the wrecked steamer on train No. 9 and the special train which went from San Luis Obispo to Santa Barbara. The names of these passengers were handed to me by the company because we were paying for their passage."

40 UNACCOUNTED FOR.

"After comparing this list with the sailing list we had forty names left unaccounted for. Many, however, went to Santa Barbara independently on the several trains and our agent there counted those in the city and checked them up. His amended list, together with the others of the forty whom we knew to be safe, left but three persons who had not been reported or accounted for in any way."

"In regard to the criticisms which have been made of this company I believe them to be unjust in the extreme. The Santa Rosa had never had an accident since she was made in 1881. On this occasion everyone believed she could be floated, even the officers on the other vessels, and as soon as it was determined that she could not, the work of rescuing the passengers was begun and accomplished very creditably by all concerned."

"I was close up during her whole time that messages were being sent and received, and I will say that the company did everything they possibly could to save the passengers."

Lists of Passengers Show Discrepancies in Many Tabulations

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Two hundred passengers have been accounted for in the wreck of the Santa Rosa, according to the Pacific Coast Steamship Company. General Passenger Agent C. D. Dunann declared last night that there were only this number of passengers on board when the Santa Rosa sailed, while the compilation from the purser's emergency list, tabulation of passengers rescued at Honda beach and arrivals here show that there were 266 passengers on the steamer when it went on the munda.

According to these figures and the sailing list of the wrecked steamer Santa Rosa, there are twenty-one passengers as yet unaccounted for. The list of these follows:

El. Boutman, Blanche Fish, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Reid and John Hastings of San Francisco; F. L. Nayless, C. N. Starr, Mrs. A. H. Mooney and Mr. and Mrs. James Worsted of Oakland, and L. Blanch-

Official Denies Truth of Report Question of Cost Was Considered

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—The following statement is made by C. D. Dunann, general passenger agent of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company:

"There is absolutely no truth in the report that we directed Captain Faria to find out how much it would cost to have the passengers taken off by the steamer Centralia. It is ridiculous on its face. What Captain Faria was told was to get the passengers on shore, any way at all, on other steamers or in any other safe way, and there was no limit placed on the expense. Captain Faria, of course, must explain the disaster. We have not heard from Faria and don't know at this time the cause of the wreck. We have checked up the entire list and find that only two are not accounted for. I am confident that the only lives lost were those of four seamen who were swept away because they were without life preservers."

or, O. Spenser, L. B. Fuller, W. H. Resig, N. J. Lask, R. Lores, Miles Naylor, Miss Kishin, A. W. C. E. Armstrong and W. T. West of other cities.

Whether these were drowned or whether some were rescued and reached their homes without reporting, can only be determined when those who survive report.

PROBE TO BE THOROUGH.

It is understood that in the Federal investigation of the wreck right inquiry will be made into the handling of lists of passengers of the boat by the company officials in tallying up the survivors. Also the story concerning the wireless message alleged to have been sent by the Pacific Coast Steamship Company from San Francisco to Captain Faria of the Santa Rosa at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, as follows:

"How much per head will the captain of the Centralia want to take your passengers to San Luis?"

From San Francisco the wrecked vessel is reported to be crumbling and fast going to pieces in the breakers. While the greater part of the hand baggage of the passengers was being maintained at the boats at low tide, little hope is entertained of saving the heavier cargo.

No bodies have been cast up by the waves, nor has any evidence been obtained as to the number of lives lost. A diligent search is being maintained all day for bodies, but a heavy undertow prevails along this coast, and the remains of the drowned may never come ashore.

J. R. Keefe, assistant general passenger agent of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, said last night that the steamer Pueblo would take the Santa Rosa's run for two weeks, following which the steamer State of California would take it regularly.

Quartermaster Tells How Santa Rosa Went on the Rocks

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—"I was the quartermaster at the wheel of the Santa Rosa when she struck, and just before she struck I heard Captain Faria shout from the bridge above me, 'Hard a-port!'" on the crew by the passengers in their stories of the wreck. In which he is quoted as saying that he should have been called by Mr. Thomas, who had the deck. I am absolutely certain that I heard Captain Faria and Mr. Thomas talking on the bridge together before they told me to put the wheel over. I may be mistaken, but that is the only way that I can testify in this case.

"I went on watch with Mate Thomas at midnight, the first two hours being on the forecastle head. At 2 I took the wheel, and was to have been at it until 4 o'clock. When I struck I thought we were south of Point Arguello. Instead of that we were two miles north of it. I was steering the usual course from Point Sur to Arguello, south 45 degrees east. On that course we should have passed clear of Point Arguello by a mile, and that is considered sufficient clearance. As soon as we got Arguello abeam we set a new course.

"There is a current from the south that sets inshore there, which is known as a three-and-a-half-knot current. It is the speed of its flow from the south, being against the vessel running south. Allowing for the flow of the current, that gives a fourteen knot vessel at full speed a true speed of about eleven knots when running against the current."

"How we happened to go ashore I can't explain. We should have seen the loom of the land, for the coast is hilly there. Of course I was not looking ahead while at the wheel, but keeping my eyes on the compass. But when you realize that we went within 300 feet of land, and the weather was not thick, it seems almost impossible that the men on the forecastle head or the mate on the bridge did not see land or breakers, or hear the breakers."

"The passengers have said, some of them, that there had been drinking by the officers that night and during the day. I was with Captain Faria all day as messenger or signal quartermaster, and I know that there was no drinking by either officers or crew. The mate looked when the vessel struck, and the door was never unlocked. The money was not taken from the cash register in the bar, according to the statements of the man who had charge of the bar."

CAPTAIN NOT ON BRIDGE.

"I immediately left the wheel and went out to quiet the passengers. Women came on deck and I told them that we were ashore, but that there was no danger, as the Hanel and Lurline had received wireless messages from us and were nearby and coming to us. That was the only statement I made during the day which was not true. It was the only thing I could say, for if I had admitted that there was danger there would have been a panic."

"Captain Faria did not show the least excitement at any time. From the first he expressed the opinion that she would float easily at high water. He sent the carpenter forward at once to sound the bell and see if she was taking water. He reported her tight."

"We struck the beach quartering, in a little cove. A point of rocks off the starboard quarter shut off our view of Point Arguello. The lead showed a depth of three fathoms astern, with two fathoms amidships. That showed that she was aground amidships, with clear water under her bows and stern. She was by the stern leaving San Francisco, which means that she was higher out of the water forward than aft, in order to give her better way through the water. She drew seventeen and a half feet aft and eleven and a half feet forward. That would give her about half a foot of water to the good under her stern and about three feet under her head. The two fathoms amidships, or on her beam, showed that she was across a bar, probably a sandbar formed by the old Honda river. The fact that she eventually broke open in the middle proves that theory, you might say, although of course we knew that it was a fact the day we under her from the first. That's why Captain Faria felt so confident he could get her off when the tide flowed."

MESSAGES FROM OWNERS.

"Sometime about noon I heard that the captain had got a message from the owners. It was not my business to ask questions, but I knew that the captain was frequently in the wireless room all morning."

"There has been a lot of talk about trouble with the captain and threats by the passengers. I heard several women jokingly ask the captain if he thought they would get their feet wet getting ashore. He told them that he felt certain there was no danger."

"It was daylight about 5 o'clock. From then until 9 o'clock I would say that the passengers could have been taken ashore very easily. From 9 on the danger increased."

"Some of the passengers had said that it was smooth as a millpond. It did look smooth as a millpond to most landsmen, but there was a good swell on. The beach was not gradually shelving, but sheer, and quite deep close to land. Perhaps if some of the women and men had tried to land on the shore in a crowded boat they would not have thought it quite so calm. I think the judgment of the officers in that respect is worth as much as the passengers, even if some of them had been up and down the coast a few times, or even on deep water voyages. Merely being a passenger does not necessarily mean sea training."

Richmond Passengers of Santa Rosa Are All Reported Safe

RICHMOND, July 10.—The Richmond passengers on board the Santa Rosa when she was wrecked Friday morning are all reported safe. Among the people from here who were aboard were Mrs. M. Church and her son, Ronald; C. Allen of the Bank of Richmond, and Mrs. Clara Louise Payne, who was responsible for the production of "The Katzenjammer Picnic" recently made here by the women of the West Side Improvement Club. Mrs. Church's destination was Los Angeles, where Mrs. Payne was also going, that being her home, while Allen was on route to San Diego.

14-Year-Old Boy, Survivor of Wreck, Arrives Safely

Henry Slutman, 14 years old, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Slutman of 510 Twenty-fifth street, this city, who as "H. Cloutmann," was reported to have been among those lost in the wreck of the steamer Santa Rosa, arrived safely at his home here at 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mrs. Slutman, the mother of the boy, who has been frantic since the news of the wreck reached her, reported this morning.

"My boy was on his way to visit relatives at Redondo, and it was the first trip of any length that he has ever taken alone. When we heard of the wreck and when so many were reported to be missing, by husband and I were nearly crazy, especially when our boy's name was not among those rescued."

SEND FIFTY TELEGRAMS.

"We sent about fifty telegrams in an effort to learn something of his whereabouts, and it was not until 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon that we learned that he was safe and on train No. 21 coming to San Francisco.

"I can make sure he was on this train, my husband telegraphed to the engineer, and Mr. Slutman met Harry at 11:45 Saturday night at the depot in San Francisco, and at 1 o'clock Sunday morning they arrived home."

"The name of H. Cloutmann, which appeared in the list of missing, was meant for my son, Harry Slutman, and that leaves one passenger less among those unaccounted for."

'How Much Per Head?' Message Received by Capt. Ericsson

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Captain Charles Ericsson of the steamer Centralia, who was among the first to respond to the Santa Rosa's wireless message for aid, arrived here with his vessel yesterday. He makes the following statement regarding the message asking him how much per head he would charge for taking the Santa Rosa passengers to San Luis:

"I am not affiliated with the Pacific Coast Steamship company. I didn't know where the message originated. But the message I got read: 'How much per head will you charge to take the passengers off and land them in San Luis?'"

"That was after 1 o'clock. I guess it was a little after it, but we were all working under a strain at the time."

SEES DISTRESS SIGNAL.

"At 5:40 in the morning I was off Point Arguello, coming to the steamer Centralia, who was among the first to respond to the Santa Rosa's distress signal. I saw the signal, about two miles to the north and went right in to her, asking by wireless if I could be of any assistance and if they wanted me to move ashore. The water was smooth and the weather clear. Captain Faria said he thought he could float her, and he looked to me as if he would come into deep water easily."

"It was pretty dangerous maneuvering in the night. The light parted and we had to begin all over again."

"The Helen P. Drew came in, and she got a line under the Santa Rosa and both tried it, but it was no use. Then the Argyle arrived and stood further out. She got a cable together. The Argyle was stronger, and at one time we thought we had her moving, but she moved further out and dropped the cable. She was stuck against a bank with her head and stern firm."

DRIVEN INTO COVE.

"She was driven into a cove right opposite the steel trestle over the dried-up Honda river, about 300 feet from shore. The least bit of rock out to view of Point Arguello, and the land to north and south of her was hilly. The passengers on her watched us working and trains stopped on the bridge a few minutes to allow their passengers to see the boat."

"We all worked well into the afternoon, and it began to get rough from about 1 o'clock on. Between 2 and 4 o'clock the evening sea began blowing in pieces rapidly. We could see the nets taking the passengers ashore and the sea breaking over the stern. We could see people huddled in the bows of her. We saw a life raft start for shore and all the passengers on board were washed off. We didn't know how many were drowned."

"We saw a boat from the Santa Rosa capsized with Second Mate Heuston and three other men. They were bringing a line off to us, and the seas smashed the boat against the Santa Rosa. As near as we could tell, the mate was crushed between the working boat and the wrecked Santa Rosa. We saw him go down with the others."

BOATS BEGIN TO SMASH.

"A boat from the Drew also capsized with her crew and we didn't know what became of them. At 5:30 the seas were breaking over the Santa Rosa so that she lay on her back. The sea began to move further out and I dropped the port anchor. I stood by until 12:30 that night, when we got a report that all the passengers were ashore. When I proceeded for San Francisco. The last message I got from Captain Faria was in the afternoon, when he asked me by wireless to keep heading out to sea with my tow line."

HARD TRIP UP COAST.

"It was as hard a trip as I have had on it. It was a hard trip. I was working trying to get her off, but when I first saw her I thought she would float with high water. Captain Faria certainly thought so. As to what he should have done with his passengers is not for me to say, for I was not on board the wreck at any time, and of course I was not able to judge conditions."

CONVICTS SEEK RELEASE OF RUEF

Ovation Given One-Time Boss at Production of July Fourth Skit.

"We'd All Like to See Him Get Out of Here," Ran One of the Lines.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Abraham Ruef, whose influence for the first time in a decade is not being felt at a municipal election in San Francisco, and whose hand is no longer anywhere near the throttle controlling events in the Pacific coast metropolis, is nevertheless still a boss. He is a boss, however, in a different sense. No longer the arbiter and dictator of things political, he is rather the man looked up to and honored as a benefactor and a counselor and comforter to those as unfortunate as himself within the walls of San Quentin penitentiary.

His leadership has been so felt during his short sojourn that the convicts who daily walk in the same line with him are anxious to see him released and would be glad if it were possible for him to go free.

GIVEN OVATION.

Following the performance on July 4, Ruef was given an ovation and a skit in the entertainment itself showed the attitude taken by his companions toward the important prisoner. An extract from the piece, tending to indicate this, follows: "The playlet was called 'Fun at Hotel Halfback.'"

Hotel proprietor to guest who enters, dropping heavy grip on floor and jumps over it: "Well, what's the matter with you? Aren't you feeling well?"

Guest: "Oh, I'm just getting over the grip."

Hotel proprietor to porter: "Here take this man to room 23, skidoo. Buy wait; here, come back. I've changed my mind. Better put him in Abe Ruef's room; we've got to get him out of here anyhow. This is no place for a man like him."

Porter (Impromptu): "We'd all like to see him get out of here, and quick, too."

WIRE TRUST TO FIGHT CHARGES

Indicted Manufacturers Enter Pleas of Not Guilty Today.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The eighty-three wire manufacturers indicted three weeks under the anti-trust law, on charges of restricting trade in the production, began their fight against the government today by entering pleas of not guilty, and securing a delay until September 1 to enable them to file demurrers. Each man's bail was fixed at $1000.

Only thirty of those indicted made appearances in the United States court today, but District Attorney Wise said he had received assurances that the attitude of all would be uniform and that the rest would file formal pleas in a day or two and be included under the action of the court taken today.

Neither Herbert L. Satterlee, J. P. Morgan's son-in-law, nor Frank J. Gould were present. Satterlee entered a plea through his attorney, but Gould was not represented.

AGED MAN MISSING.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Inquiry was made at the local hospitals this morning for William Baker, an aged man of 83 Hill street, who has been missing from his home. His relatives are extremely anxious to locate him.

MUNYON PREACHES HOPE-PHILOSOPHY

New Cult Founded on Faith Finds Many Converts in San Francisco.

Membership of Organization Growing in Leaps and Bounds.

Tremendous success has attended the organization of the new Munyon "Hope Cult" in this city. Professor Munyon claims that he has secured more converts here than he even anticipated on his arrival, and says that his "Hope Cult" is growing in membership in leaps and bounds. It is said that the total membership of the association throughout the United States is now well over the half million mark.

In a statement for publication Professor Munyon said: "I want to talk today to every sick, ailing and despondent person in this city. I want to preach my new creed to them—I want to tell them about my new philosophy of health, which is the fruit of a lifetime of study and experience in dealing with sick folk."

"I want to expound the great truth I have learned that there is more curative power in an ounce of hope than in tons of drugs. The sick people should not take medicines except as a medium through which the great curative power of hope may be made effective. Medicines are necessary in the present state of the world's progress, because they give a patient physical support and strength and renewed vigor with which to brace up the will power. One knows from the action of the proper medicines that he or she is feeling better, and this builds up faith and hope, which complete the cure."

"I think that probably a million persons at least in the United States have declared themselves cured by my remedies, and I know that these people have had the best medical science had to offer. I have always contended that if there is any virtue in medicine my followers should have the best, but I verily believe that more than that, those who have been lifted to health from the bondage of chronic illness through taking my remedies have been really cured by the knowledge that they had the utmost in medical lore at the command, and the hope this inspired."

"I am not in any sense a practicing physician. I employ at my laboratories in Philadelphia a larger staff of expert physicians and chemists, and I have many other physicians in various cities of the United States detailed to give free advice to the sick and afflicted."

"My headquarters in San Francisco is at the Owl drug store in the Phelan building, and I have there a staff of duly registered physicians, together with consulting experts from the east and to all who desire I offer the best of medical advice absolutely free of charge. Hours are from ten in the morning to six at night, and until ten o'clock Saturday night."

'WAR AND EVILS' JORDAN'S THEME

President of Stanford Pleads for Peace in Oakland Sermon.

Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford University, took as his subject: "War and Its Evils," in his address at the First Congregational church in this city yesterday morning.

"War in the United States and in many of the smaller nations of the world is a thing of the past. It is only in the larger nations of Europe that the people will rise against each other in years to come, and these conditions have been brought on by the wealthy men, who are lending the monarchs money for their large standing armies and navies," said President Jordan in opening his address.

"The nations of Europe are in such a state at the present time that they have nothing to fall back on but what they could secure from the sale of their ships. If it came to the very hour of their death, they would all be up by what is known as the 'unseen empire.' This 'unseen empire' is composed of 17 of the richest men in Europe, and when they refuse the nations more credit the all will come."

LOSES BALANCE; FALLS TO STREET

San Francisco Waiter Injured by Plunge Through Window.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—While endeavoring to close a window in his room at 1323 Stockton street at 2:15 this morning, C. Naurissat, a waiter, lost his balance and fell to the street. He succeeded in clutching a projection, which broke his fall, and he landed on his feet, sustaining a fractured leg.

It was dark in the apartment when Naurissat entered, and the window in some manner refused to close. The sill is low and the man's fingers slipped, his weight forcing him through the opening. At the Harbor hospital Dr. Topham set the injured member.

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED WHILE HE WAS RESISTING ATTEMPT AT ARREST

Witnesses Say That the Dead Lad Fired First

hour on Claremont avenue at ten o'clock at night without a light, the driver of the motorcycle increased his speed and rode the patrolman down.

PATROLMAN INJURED

Patrolman Gannaw was thrown to the ground, and three ribs were fractured in the fall. He also suffered internal injuries which may prove fatal; but the physicians hold out a hope of recovery.

Remarkable vitality was exhibited by both the wounded officer, Patrolman Gannaw, and the wounded man, Freudenthal. The latter ran more than six blocks after being fatally shot, to the residence of his friend, Barnett. Patrolman Gannaw after being hurled to the ground, arose, captured and handcuffed Barnett, and engaged in the three cornered revolver duel in which Freudenthal was fatally wounded.

Alfred Barnett, companion of the man who was shot, made a statement to Captain of Inspectors Walter J. Petersen this morning in which he declared that his friend, who is a young electrician, fired the first shot. This is corroborated by Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Bell of 236 Locksley avenue, who witnessed the affair.

HAD BEEN DRINKING.

Cecil Harris, whose motorcycle was being ridden by Freudenthal and Barnett, had been out riding during the day with Freudenthal and both had drunk beer and whisky, but Harris declares that Freudenthal was not drunk at the time.

Mayor Frank K. Mott, Chief Wilson and Captain Petersen stated this morning that the case will be handled as though no police were involved in the affair and that if the patrolmen were guilty of any misconduct they will be punished. The case will be the subject of a rigid investigation.

The scene was set for the affair and according to the spectators the sensational developments followed each other thick and fast. Mr. and Mrs. Bell declared this morning that at the height of the trouble bullets were whizzing thick and fast in every direction from three revolvers and that passersby hastened to hide behind telegraph poles and fences.

The affair happened a few minutes after 10 o'clock last night. Patrolmen Gannaw and Teeple met at the box at Forrest and Claremont avenues and had just sent in the reports to the central office when Gannaw noticed the motorcycle being driven north on Claremont avenue. It was without a light and the patrolmen started to enforce the law against riding at night without a light.

On the motorcycle were Freudenthal and Barnett. Freudenthal driving the machine. According to Cecil Harris, owner of the machine, with whom Freudenthal had spent the day motoring about Oakland, he, Freudenthal and Barnett, were all at Barnett's home in 142 Locksley avenue. Freudenthal and Barnett stole away from their companions and mounted Harris' cycle for a short spin. Barnett was without hat, coat or vest at the time.

INTERCEPT THE MACHINE.

Patrolman Gannaw started directly for the motorcycle, while Teeple went diagonally up the street to intercept the machine if Gannaw failed. Gannaw called to them to stop, but Freudenthal increased the speed of the machine. Then Gannaw leaped out and grasped the handlebars of the machine and he and the machine and its two riders went to the street in a tangled mass.

As they arose Gannaw grasped Barnett and slipped a pair of handcuffs over his wrists. Although the patrolman was wounded he started to drag his man toward the police box to call for the patrol wagon. A moment later he heard shots.

Freudenthal had come to his feet holding an automatic revolver in his hand, and this was pointed at Patrolman Teeple, who had approached the place.

THREAT TO SHOOT.

"I have an automatic revolver," Freudenthal called out. "All I have to do is to pull the trigger and I will not be taken."

Teeple ordered him to throw up his hands and surrender, informing him that he was a police officer. As he saw a motorcycle approaching and a man on the north side of Forrest, coming east from Telegraph, I saw Officer Gannaw just leaving the box. On arriving at the box we saw a motorcycle approaching and Officer Gannaw said, "Here is some one riding a motorcycle without a light. Let us stop him." The motorcycle at the time was being driven north on Claremont. Officer Gannaw moved directly across the street to accost the people on the motorcycle and I moved diagonally across the street to stop them in the event of their getting by Gannaw. Gannaw called to them to halt. Instead of their doing so they started to increase their speed and Gannaw grabbed the handlebars, causing the motorcycle to tip over. The two riders and Gannaw and the motorcycle tumbled up on the ground. I at the time was about 50 feet from the scene. I saw a man get up and draw a revolver. Seeing him do so I drew my revolver and approached him and ordered him to throw up his hands. He refused to do so and began to back away from me. I followed him up and told him that I was an officer and that he had better surrender. He said:

"I have an automatic revolver. All I have to do is to pull the trigger and I will not be taken." At this time he had me covered with his revolver and I had him covered with mine, he backing and I approaching, and we about ten feet apart. We had arrived at the corner of Claremont and Forrest. He was on Forrest on the north side and I was on the northeast corner of Claremont and Forrest and I jumped behind a large pole at this corner. He then approached me where I was behind the pole, at the same time saying:

"I can shoot right through that pole and hit you," or words to that effect.

He walked into the street and notified the central office and Captain Brown sent Patrolman George Caveney and a posse in the automobile. Gannaw was taken to the Receiving hospital, Barnett placed under arrest and the officers traced Freudenthal to the Barnett residence and went with the physician to the hospital.

MAKES DYING STATEMENT.

There, in response to questions from Inspector Richard McSorley and in the presence of Captain Thorwald Brown and Drs. Carter, C. Hall and Charles A. Dukes, the dying man repeated his last statement, declaring that the patrolman had fired the first shot at him. He died shortly before 4 o'clock this morning, after being removed from the operating table. The body was removed to the morgue.

Freudenthal was 19 years of age and an electrician.

Following are the statements of the two patrolmen:

PATROLMAN GANNAW'S STATEMENT.

Officer J. E. Gannaw made the following statement: "I had made my 10 p. m. report at Claremont avenue and Forrest street and saw a motorcycle coming toward me. I went out and told the riders to halt and wait a minute. As they approached me they increased their speed. I then grabbed the handle bars of the cycle and the riders and myself went to the ground. Just then Officer Teeple came up and I being injured in the fall I grabbed one and handcuffed him and was taking him to the box when I heard shots. We were all standing, the man with his coat and hat on and a revolver in his hand. He commenced shooting and then Teeple fired. Then I fired two or three shots. Teeple fired three or four shots. Officers Forrest and Caveney came out and took me to the hospital. I do not know whether I shot the man or hit him at all, although I fired at him."

TEEPLE'S REPORT.

A. Wilson, Chief of Police—Sir: About 10:10 p. m. this date I was on my way to make my 10:15 p. m. report at the box at Claremont and Forrest street. I was on the north side of Forrest, coming east from Telegraph. I saw Officer Gannaw just leaving the box. On arriving at the box we saw a motorcycle approaching and Officer Gannaw said, "Here is some one riding a motorcycle without a light. Let us stop him." The motorcycle at the time was being driven north on Claremont. Officer Gannaw moved directly across the street to accost the people on the motorcycle and I moved diagonally across the street to stop them in the event of their getting by Gannaw. Gannaw called to them to halt. Instead of their doing so they started to increase their speed and Gannaw grabbed the handlebars, causing the motorcycle to tip over. The two riders and Gannaw and the motorcycle tumbled up on the ground. I at the time was about 50 feet from the scene. I saw a man get up and draw a revolver. Seeing him do so I drew my revolver and approached him and ordered him to throw up his hands. He refused to do so and began to back away from me. I followed him up and told him that I was an officer and that he had better surrender. He said:

"I have an automatic revolver. All I have to do is to pull the trigger and I will not be taken." At this time he had me covered with his revolver and I had him covered with mine, he backing and I approaching, and we about ten feet apart. We had arrived at the corner of Claremont and Forrest. walked toward Claremont avenue, I moving around the pole to prevent his shooting me. When he arrived at Claremont avenue he backed away from me about 40 or 50 feet, holding his revolver pointed in my direction all the time.

He then fired. I am unable to say how many shots.

I returned the shots. I shot four times, once while he was facing me, and three times while he was running. But he got away. Officer Gannaw also shot at the fellow. I ran after him, chasing him along the east side of Claremont toward Telegraph. About the middle of the block on the east side of Claremont there is a ridge of dirt and he fell over this, but got up and ran at great speed. I following, fell over the same ridge, and on rising found that the fellow had disappeared around the corner of Hudson street.

The ridge of dirt is on the east side of Claremont, between Forrest and Hudson streets. I did not continue the chase, but continued to where the crowd had gathered on Claremont and Forrest and assisted Officer Gannaw, who had been injured in attempting to stop the motorcyclists. Also took charge of Alfred Barnett of 142 Locksley avenue, who at the time was riding with the man who did the shooting. Barnett said the name of the man was Robert Freudenthal and that he thought he lived on San Pablo avenue near Twenty-fifth street; that he was an electrician in the employ of the Home Telephone Company, Mr. and Mrs. C. TEEPLE'S RECORD.

Patrolman Teeple is 34 years of age. He is married and resides at 335 San Pablo avenue. His record in the department is good, since his appointment as regular in March, 1910.

Patrolman Gannaw, who is 26 years of age, was appointed in January, 1911. He captured a thief in Claremont when the latter pulled a revolver on him last December and has made a good record for himself.

LIKED BY EMPLOYERS.

As an employee of the Bay Cities Telephone Company in the mechanical department, young Freudenthal was highly thought of by his superiors. It is declared by his fellow workmen that there was not a more efficient mechanic in his line in Oakland. At his home he had fitted up a workshop and was engaged in perfecting a number of devices which he was in hopes of getting patented to the betterment of his fortune.

Superintendent John Wicks, head of the mechanical department in the main office at Seventeenth and Franklin streets, said today that he had thought so highly of the boy's services that last week he decided to transfer him to the local office.

"I ordered him to report in the Oakland office for work this morning. He had been working the night shift in Berkeley and it is owing to the transfer that he was not working last night. When he did not show up this morning I changed in perfecting a number of devices which he was in hopes of getting patented to the betterment of his fortune."

"It was a most unfortunate affair, particularly as the boys in the shop had told him often that he should not carry a revolver with him. He was such a boy in his manner, that it was a foolhardy thing for him to do in the first place."

MECHANICAL GENIUS.

According to neighbors, Freudenthal, besides being a genius in the mechanical line, also possessed marvelous hypnotic powers. It was stated that he had practically rekindled when she had been given an aged woman when she had been given up by friends at her bedside.

Fred Jenkins, step-father of the boy, is a laundry worker and is now out of employment. He was the only son of his mother. As his dues in the local union had expired a few days ago and were not renewed the family will not receive any benefits from that source, although it was stated by his former fellow workmen that they would do all in their power for the bereaved family. Young Freudenthal was highly thought of by the men in both the Berkeley and Oakland offices.

PULL OUT A HAIR
The Way to Tell Whether or Not Your Hair Is Diseased

Even if you have a luxuriant head of hair you may want to know whether it is in a healthy condition or not. Ninety-eight per cent of the people need a hair tonic. You can make a test yourself that you can see and understand, which will tell you whether your hair is healthy or not. Pull a hair out of your head. If the bulb at the end of the root is white and shrunken, it proves that the hair is diseased and requires prompt treatment if its loss would be avoided. If the bulb is thick and full, the hair is healthy.

We want everyone whose hair requires treatment to try our Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. We promise that it will not cost anything if it does not give satisfactory results. Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is designed to overcome dandruff, relieve scalp irritation, stimulate the hair roots, tighten the hair already in the head, grow hair and eradicate baldness.

Out of 100 cases where it was given a thorough, conscientious test, it grew hair on 97 heads, which should be sufficient proof that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic contains extraordinary remedial and hair-growing qualities. It is because of our knowledge of this preparation and our sincere faith in its goodness that we want you to try it at our risk.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is a clean, clear preparation which does not grease, gum or thicken the hair, and it has a very pleasant odor. We have it in two sizes, prices $2.00 and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at The Owl Drug Co., Inc., 10th and Washington, 15th and Broadway, 16th and San Pablo.

EIGHT MEET DEATH
IN MEXICAN RIOTS

Partisans of Rival Candidates Create Veritable Reign of Terror in Ocotlan.

OAXACA, Mexico, July 10.—Eight men were killed and a score injured in a political riot in Ocotlan.

Partisans of Benito Juarez, one of the two candidates for governor, inaugurated the riot by leading an attack on mercantile establishments of the Diaz brothers, relatives of General Felix Diaz, the opposition candidate for governor.

Armed resistance on the part of the occupants of the store increased the fury of the mob, which ran amuck through the principal streets, breaking windows of private residences and business houses.

In a short time the partisans of Diaz rallied, and their leaders led them in a counter mob. Few of the rioters were armed with anything better than revolvers, clubs, stones and knives being weapons most frequently wielded.

Merchants, owners of stores attacked, posted themselves in many cases on top of their buildings and shot into the attacking mob. Most of the deaths are ascribed to them.

UNSEAT GOVERNOR.

MONTERREY, Mexico, July 10.—Much significance is attached in political circles here to the reports just received of a revolutionary movement in the state of Coahuila.

Dispatches from San Cristobal, capital of that state, say a rebel force of more than 2000 men has been organized to oppose the authority of the Maderist government.

The army is well armed and mounted and has recruited along the Guatemalan border. It is commanded by Jose Espinosa Torres. At the head of his rebel forces, Torres took possession of the town of San Cristobal.

Marching to the residence of provisional Governor Roldofo Gordillo, Torres demanded his immediate resignation, which was tendered.

The fact that southeastern Mexico, embracing the states of Chiapas, Tabasco, Campeche, Vera Cruz and Oaxaca, were loyal to the Diaz administration during the recent rebellion causes the uprisings against the present government in that quarter to be regarded as serious.

PRIMER SPREADS
UNIONIST CREED

Book Contrasts the Lots of Union and Non-Union Working Girls.

CHICAGO, July 10.—A novel method of spreading the gospel of unionism among Chicago's foreign population has been adopted by the women trade unionists. Lessons in English are being taught foreign working girls, but the old primer has been discarded and a new one substituted by the Women's Trade Union League.

The time-honored cat, which has hitherto been the connecting link between the "union" and the "non-union" girl, is no longer reads "I see the cat." Instead she reads, "I am a union girl."

The lesson proceeds, "I start work at 8 o'clock in the morning. I quit at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. I get $4 a week."

In another lesson the condition of the non-union girl is contrasted with that of the union girl. It reads, "I am not a union girl. I begin work at 7 o'clock in the morning and I work until 6 o'clock in the evening. I get $3 a week."

The new system of education was explained at the Women's Trade Union League yesterday.

Freckles

Here's a Simple Remedy That Banishes Freckles Early in the Night.

If people who freckle every summer would get a two-ounce package of Kintin in July they would be almost sure to have a freckle-free face in the fall. Kintin discolors freckles on other people. One thing is sure—the quicker you use Kintin the sooner you'll be rid of your freckles. Get it wherever toilet goods are sold. If it fails, get your money back. Kintin is a simple remedy. It will not only help you get the freckles off, but it is a delightful for toilet use.

'IN AND OUT' CREATES RIOT
IN LOCAL ORPHEUM AUDIENCE

MISS MARGUERITE KELLER at the Oakland Orpheum.

(By Leo Levy.)

"In and Out" fairly shivers with its own delight, with abject apology to the advertisements of somebody's gelatine. A mitigated rough-house in one act, it was created to tickle the funnybone of a yawning world, and succeeds beyond all dreams and calculations. "In and Out" is at the Oakland Orpheum this week.

Porter Emerson Browne, who wrote it, labeled it an episode. It's a barrel of them. Webster brands "episode" an "incidental narrative." "In and Out" is incidental to nothing, excepting, perhaps, the Unexpected Guest's jag. The latter is a thing of beauty and a joy forever, but more of it anon.

Don't get away with the idea that "In and Out" is an incident. It is an accident. Orpheumoids of its caliber never must be accidents. Playwrights have to stumble over something worth while once in a season, so this was discovered quite accidentally, we're sure. It isn't the great American sketch, of course, due, perhaps, to the fact that there never will be anything of the kind. It comes near enough for comfort, however.

TIME-HONORED PLOT.

"In and Out" is based on the time-honored plot of the wrong man getting into the wrong house at the right time. The sister, she is unmarried (that is as far as we are taken into the confidence of the program) sits up late one night awaiting the arrival of the brother's friend, whom she has never seen, brother or having gone out for the evening leaving with his relative and the audience the information that the Expected Guest has a latchkey of his own. Knows how to use it and is well aware that his room will be ready for him that night and his breakfast the next morning.

Dark stage, a whistle, outside noise and then the lights disclose the outside of the house.

The Unexpected Guest arrives. When we say arrives, we do not speak as of a locomotive. An arriving locomotive rolls proudly up with the obvious appearance of a thing that knows whether it would go. "The Unexpected Guest" rolls well enough, but there the resemblance ends. For he is known the gentleman has a heavy load on his shoulders and he staggers. He draws up and seats himself heavily on the friendly stoop.

REAL ENOUGH TO BE SO.

Homer B. Mason plays the Unexpected. His jag is real enough to be so and his alcoholic soliloquy a long conversation with his latchkey, and you wonder why some of our monologists haven't thought of doing the same thing before. It would be, standing by itself, enough to make a go in vaudeville.

To get back to "In and Out." After a shriekingly vain endeavor to introduce the key to the latch, the Unexpected Guest falls in through the window. What follows is a situation as old as vaudeville, but better done than ever before. The Unexpected Guest believes himself in his own house. The Sister thinks him the Expected Guest. A policeman spies the dubious one effecting an unconventional entrance. The friend of the brother arrives. So does the Brother, and another policeman.

Why go on? Picture it all for yourself. If you cannot, pay a visit to the theater's ticket office, see and believe. We'd rather not butcher the Orpheum old here to make an Oakland holiday. Take our word for it if you ever believe us again. Marguerite Keller is something new in sisters. Mason is absolute by the last word in jags. "In and Out" is funny enough to be taken seriously. If you don't laugh at it, rent a room at the hospital quick; you're in a bad way.

THAT GREEN TIE.

Melville Ellis wore a green tie at yesterday's matinee. It was a fearfully green tie, of a tint half way between yellow and over-ripe grass. It hung gracefully over the triangular expanse of Ellis' shirt bosom and shrieked its noisy way over the footlights, drowning out the fortissimo of his piano playing. Besides daring to don the cravat Ellis does excellent work on the keyboard. He combines grand opera with popular stuff, but failed yesterday to set the gallery whistling. Which absolves us of telling you whether or not he will be back again next season.

"General" Ed La Vine, wonderfully attired as a major domo, tossed rubber balls and a pughat in the midst of a mechanical stage setting. La Vine does few of the old ones that jugglers before him have done for ages, introducing many entirely new. Of Roughy's Scenic Review the critics in the last row of the ten-cent section applaud only the scenery. That, with the aid of lights and the stereopticon, proves a display worth the time it is given. Lydell and Euterpe, in musical nonsense and dancing earned the applause it was accorded.

Holdovers that are stars round out another above par bill that the Orpheum will put on every day this week. Raymond and Gavery, Master Albert Hole and the Belledair Brothers are down on the program again.

YOUTHFUL STUDENT
WINS COVETED PRIZE

BOSTON, July 10.—Adolph A. Berle Jr., Harvard 1931, one of the youngest students ever entered at the University, has won the Patria Society prize for the best essay on a subject connected with political or diplomatic history of the United States. He is a son of Rev. Dr. Berle, pastor of the Shawmut Congregational Church, 16 years old, and has completed two years' work at Harvard. He is specializing in history and political science with distinction.

In 1908 he was graduated from Salem High School, being then 13 years of age, four feet five inches and wore short trousers. He entered Harvard the next fall, and with the exception of 11-year-old William James Sidis, was the youngest freshman. A few months after matriculating he entered the contest for the Pasteur debating medal, and was one of the eight who were chosen to take part in the final debate. The subject of his prize essay was "The Strategic Importance of the Siege of Boston."

GATES TO CONTROL
GREAT OIL FIELDS

Pearson Property in Mexico Will Be in Hands of Americans.

GALVESTON, Texas, July 10.—Following cable advice of John W. Gates having had an important interview with Lord Cowdray, head of the oil firm of S. Pearson & Son, it is learned that the Texas company, which controls the oil fields and controlling stock owner has obtained control of the output of the Pearson field near Tampico, in Mexico. It is understood that the transaction represents $25,000,000 and that the deal also includes the Pearson's refined oil trade in Mexico, controlled by the Mexican Eagle Company.

The Texas company will put on a line of steamers and bring the crude oil to Port Arthur, where the Gates company owns immense facilities.

The Magnolia Oil Company, the new company which combines the properties of the Siskiyou Oil Company and the Gulf Refining Company, formerly Standard Oil concerns, and which were sold out by the State, is preparing to fight the Gates company, and has contracted with the D. W. interests of Mexico for unlimited quantities of crude oil.

SISKIYOU COUNTY TO REMOVE LID

Difficulty of Securing Convictions Leads to Removal of Restrictions.

TREKA, July 10.—The Siskiyou county supervisors have adopted a resolution to pass an ordinance July 17 removing all county restrictions from the sale of liquor. The county, outside of incorporated towns, is now "dry." The action of the supervisors was taken on account of the difficulty of securing convictions for the illicit sale of liquor.

MANY HORSES PERISH.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Fire early yesterday destroyed the property of the Arthur W. Dixon Transfer Company, burned 263 horses to death and caused a loss amounting to $500,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Doxes of firemen narrowly escaped death when the roof caved in. The stables were within five blocks of the business district.

Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the furniture warehouse of W. C. Robie & Brothers, causing a loss of $100,000.

KIDNAPS WOMAN
IN HER NIGHTIE

Police Seek Peter Rodriguez, Whom They Blame for Startling Crime.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Armed with a big revolver, a man supposed to be Peter Rodriguez smashed a rear window at 654 Green street early yesterday morning, forced his way into the house and, forcing Mrs. C. Beintas and a companion to their knees, finally compelled Mrs. Beintas to go with him into the street, the pair disappearing in the darkness. Mrs. Beintas was clad only in a nightgown at the time, and, despite her plea to be allowed to remain, she obeyed the desperate man's command.

Mrs. Beintas reported the occurrence to Policeman J. C. Stelzner, who searched every lodging-house in the surrounding neighborhood for some trace of the captive woman, but without success.

According to Mrs. Beintas, Mrs. Ravell had quarreled with Rodriguez, with whom she had been living for some time. Mrs. Beintas declared that Mrs. Ravell, who she said was not the woman's correct name, came to her house seeking a haven of refuge from Rodriguez. They retired early and were asleep when they heard the crashing of glass, and, Mrs. Beintas says, Rodriguez entered the room.

He was armed with a big revolver and compelled the two women to arise. Then he threatened them with death and forced them to their knees, murmuring threats. Rodriguez then poked the gun into the small of the younger woman's back and forced her into the street, not even giving her time to don more apparel.

EXPLOSION KILLS OFF
CHICKS BY THOUSANDS

CHICAGO, July 10.—Commission merchants and housewives have wondered why no spring chickens were coming on the market and yesterday the reason was ascertained. When the Du Pont Powder Mills at Pleasant Prairie, Wis., blew up last December, the explosion wrecked buildings for twenty miles in every direction, and was felt as far as Cleveland, Ohio, and as far south as St. Louis.

At that time much attention was given to the destruction of property, but no thought was given to the hundreds of thousands of hens, for a radius of fifty miles in every direction, who left their nests in terror and wandered about in distress for several hours. They finally went back to their tasks of hatching out broilers and spring fry for the Chicago market, but the vibrations had destroyed the vitality of the eggs.

The few chicks that were hatched were deformed, with feathers turned the wrong way, wings and legs were out of joint, and altogether a grotesque and bizarre assortment of freaks. Not only were the eggs in the process of being hatched destroyed, but other eggs, later hatched, were found to be defective. The hatchlings were turned out just as badly.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., July 10.—The condition of Edward M. Shepard of New York, recently a candidate for United States Senator, who is ill at his summer home here, is more serious than previous reports have indicated.

Latest Homes Equipped with Awnings and Sleeping Porches

A modern home is not complete unless supplied with canvas awnings for the windows and porches. They more than save their cost the first three months they are in use. In fact, the cost of an awning does not exceed one-sixteenth part of a cent per day and is therefore within the reach of everyone. Shades are all right, but the sun hits the glass just the same and heats up the room inside. Awnings keep the sun away from the glass and the result is a cool and comfortable home. If you have a porch or patio to build one you ought to equip it with awnings or curtains as you really cannot sit outside on a windy day without them. Get us to fix up a cozy corner for you on your porch and you will be surprised how much better you will feel and how much more you will live out of doors.

La Follette Attacks Taft.

In the last number of the Philadelphia Evening Post there appears an interview with Hon. Robert La Follette that is clearly given out to boost his candidacy for the Presidency. It will not be of much avail as a campaign document, however, because of the imputations cast upon President Taft. The Wisconsin Senator impugns the President in terms that bring his integrity in question. No man has ever yet reached the Presidency by personally attacking the holder of that high office. La Follette has mistaken the temper of the American people if he believes that he can pull another man from a high place to seat himself instead. President Taft has the confidence of the American people; they respect him, and no considerable number of them can be made to believe that his motives are not sincere and patriotic. Many of them differ with him, but the difference is one of opinion respecting public policies and does not involve a question of sincerity. There is not a man in the country whose character is more highly esteemed and whose honesty of intention is more generally recognized than William H. Taft. La Follette cannot break him down in popular estimation—cannot build himself by destroying his reputation—that no man can do. Nor will La Follette ever be President. He is too narrow an egotist; too unscrupulous in his methods; too intemperate in speech and too ready to give tongue to calumny. Moreover, he gives offense to the popular sense of fairplay, and is too lacking in the essentials of courtesy and dignity. His disrespect for the high office to which he aspires is shown by the slurs he casts upon the man who holds it. Personal insults hurled at the President never meet the approval of the masses and almost invariably recoil upon the head of the offender. La Follette will be no exception to the rule.

Evidence multiplies that the captain of the Santa Rosa is unfit to command an ocean liner. Lack of decision and initiative is his chief deficiency. Instead of relying on his own judgment and acting on his own responsibility he procrastinated and awaited orders from San Francisco. Hence to the loss of his ship he added loss of life. No doubt he is a good navigator and a brave man, but in the crisis he lost the power to think and act independently, could not rely on his own judgment nor depend upon his own resources. His mind is subordinate by habit. He failed in the highest duty of a sea commander for that reason. He could not decide between the duty he owed his passengers and the allegiance he owed his employers. In trying to save the latter from a little expense in addition to the loss of the ship he sacrificed a number of lives. Only a short time ago a bold and foolhardy captain lost his ship on the northern coast, and now a sloppy-minded captain has drowned a lot of passengers on the southern coast because he could not make his mind up to act promptly.

Public opinion will hold the Pacific Coast Steamship Company to sharp account for the loss of life in the wreck of the Santa Rosa. It appears that Captain Faria held the passengers on board in obedience to the company's offices in San Francisco. It is possible that the captain misrepresented to his superiors the peril the passengers were in, but the company's officers showed a callous spirit in temporizing with the lives of those on board the wreck. The captain was unfit for his job, but he seems to be the kind of a man the company wanted.

There is a great deal of talk about insurgency in the ranks of the National Educational Association, but just what the insuring is about has not been made clear. Perhaps it is the ancient struggle of the outs against the ins. In every organization there is a certain proportion of kickers, likewise persons with an ambition to take the high places occupied by others. It may be that the insurgency movement in the N. E. A. is the expression of discontent on the part of chronic kickers and aspirants for office, and then again, it may be a sincere expression of disapproval of the methods and tendencies which characterize the present management of the association's affairs. If the grievances be merely personal, they are not vital; if they arise from vagrant dissent, they are hardly worth consideration. But if there are real abuses to be corrected, the insurgents have solid ground to stand upon and a cause worth fighting for.

The Money Problem in Diplomacy.

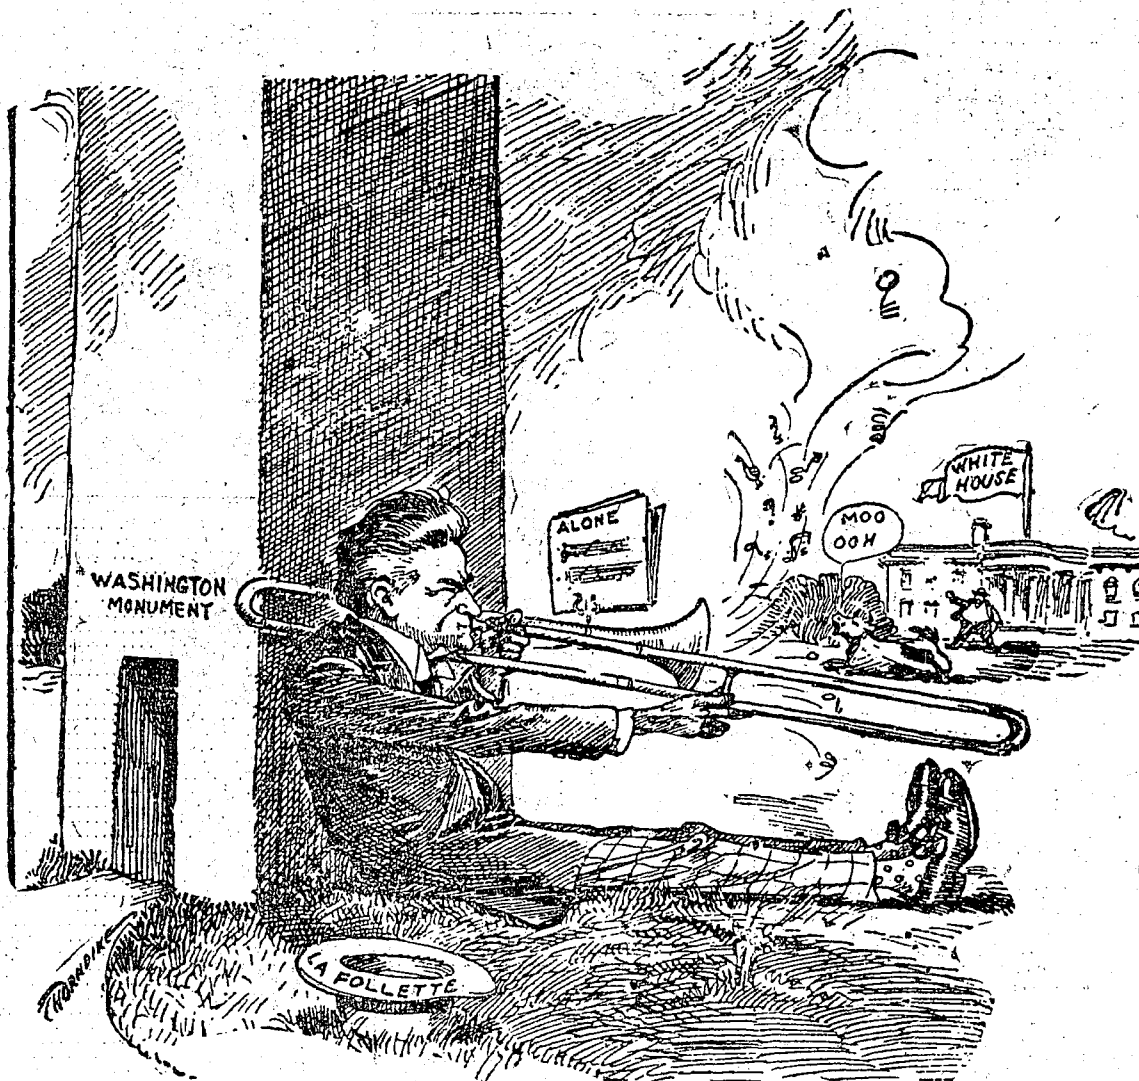

The old question of making suitable financial provision for the ambassadors the United States sends to the capitals of Europe is again to the fore. It seems that the mission to St. James is going a-begging because no one fitted for the job will take it. That is the report, at any rate. It costs so much to be an ambassador to England, France, Germany or Russia that men of moderate means cannot afford to take an appointment. Our government does not provide residences for its ambassadors, and pays salaries wholly inadequate to support them in the style they should live. Hence the most important ambassadorships in the gift of the President have come to be regarded as the perquisites of multi-millionaires.

As Ambassador to Germany Charlemagne Tower set such an extraordinary pace that his successor, a man of greater ability and far better fitted for the diplomatic service, was finally forced to quit the job. He did not have the private means to support anything like the style maintained by his predecessor, and the salary paid by the government was insufficient to meet his living expenses and the numerous demands entailed by his position. Representing the wealthiest nation on the globe, he was paid a smaller salary than the ministers of third-rate powers receive. He was not furnished an official residence nor the personal attendants supplied the diplomatic representatives of foreign powers. Mr. Tower is worth many millions and spent five or six times as much as the salary he received.

Whitelaw Reid, who has been Ambassador to England for many years, has maintained a state so extravagant as to deter the most capable men in the nation from desiring to succeed him. His fortune is so vast that expenditures which would ruin other men do not embarrass him in the least. Annually he paid $50,000 rent for his London residence and $20,000 for a country seat—precisely twice as much as the salary he received from the government. Besides, he kept a great retinue of servants and gave costly banquets. His expenses probably aggregate a total of $250,000 a year. His salary is $35,000.

In Washington the British government maintains a furnished residence for its ambassador, who receives $60,000 a year, and is provided with a number of servants. Hence men of moderate means can serve Great Britain in the most important diplomatic positions. Nearly all the European nations own and maintain ambassadorial residences in Washington. Their diplomatic representatives are better paid than ours, and therefore are able to serve without drawing on their private fortunes to eke out insufficient salaries. The United States should follow their example. Our diplomatic representatives abroad should be provided with fixed official residences and should be paid a salary sufficient to support the style required by their positions. A fixed official residence would prevent invidious comparison between the state maintained by different ambassadors. Every envoy would have to occupy the same residence, and that residence should be in accord with the dignity and wealth of the nation.

It is said that President Taft has offered the ambassadorship to England to four men who have declined it for financial reasons. This may or may not be true; but it is nevertheless a fact that the meagerness of the salary and the lack of an official residence make the filling of the London mission a grave problem. Men fitted for the place are plenty enough, but competent men willing to take it under existing conditions are hard to find. As matters stand, it is a rich man's job, and few very rich men are qualified for the duties of ambassador to a first-class power. There's the rub. Whitelaw Reid and Charlemagne Tower serve by reason of their wealth, not by their ability or their talent for diplomacy. Their mediocrity is in unfavorable contrast to the eminent talents of the long line of illustrious men who represented the American nation abroad prior to the era of swollen wealth and boundless extravagance.

Prohibition in Maine and Texas.

After half a century's trial the citizens of Maine are soon to vote on the question of repealing the section of the State Constitution forbidding the sale of liquor. It is argued that prohibition has proved a failure; that it has not stopped drunkenness nor visibly decreased the consumption of liquor, and that it has created an infamous spy system and kept out of the State treasury a large revenue that would be received under the license system. But in Texas the advocates of prohibition are pointing to Maine as a proof that prohibition does prohibit; there it is alleged that the liquor traffic has actually been banished from Maine, and that in consequence the people of the Pine-tree State are sober and prosperous.

However, the reports of the Federal collector of internal revenue emphatically contradict these allegations. They show that a great many Federal liquor licenses are taken out in Maine and that there is a large consumption of alcoholic liquors in the State. The police reports show that a great number of arrests for drunkenness are made annually. The Texas prohibitionists do not take these reports seriously, deny them in fact, and go on citing Maine as a shining example of temperance and virtue for Texas to follow. Hence they are asking the people of the Lone Star State to adopt a constitutional amendment that absolutely prohibits the sale and manufacture of alcoholic beverages.

It does not seem to occur to the Texas prohibitionists to inquire why the present campaign should be raging in Maine if prohibition has been such a complete and unqualified success. After being tried for more than fifty years, prohibition is challenged in Maine on the specific ground that it is a failure, that it does not prohibit, but does encourage drinking under conditions by which character is demoralized and politics corrupted. It has again been placed on trial before the electorate for precisely the same reasons prohibition is opposed in Texas.

That dissatisfaction with the workings of the prohibition law is widespread in Maine is shown by the returns from the last State election. The Democrats elected the Governor and Legislature on a platform which pledged them to resubmit the question of prohibition to the electorate. The election soon to take place was called in obedience to that pledge. Yet in Texas the prohibitionists are saying prohibition has proved so successful in Maine that it should be adopted in Texas.

BOY AND HIS MOTHER

It is a great epoch in a boy's life when he reaches the working age, and it is everything to him how he makes use of it. Here is a picture in a newspaper, showing a mother and her boy. They are side by side, and he is showing a letter, which the mother is looking at. The picture is entitled, "You won't have to wash any more, mother." It seems the boy had received a "working certificate" from the school labor bureau and that certificate entitles him to a job somewhere. He is showing it to his mother; they are both gazing intently upon it.

What a noble thing for a boy, when he first gets a job of work, to think of his mother right away. It is to her he hurries and says, "Now you won't have to wash any more." There are little things in this world that are grander than the grandest. This is one of them. There was nothing in all coronation day that was as great. Compared with this a government social function is as an anthill to the Alps. No doubt, in God's sight, that boy is as great as Taft or George V. There is something in a boy who is true to his mother; there is something bad about a boy when he isn't. Ohio State Journal.

Home Cooking

The circumstances of the matrimonial jangle that has led a Massachusetts solon to rule that it is the husband's right in that state to decide what food shall be served in the house are of minor importance, but the decision itself brings up any number of important factors of married life, the domestic commissariat. It presents so many changing aspects in the course of the years that only a panoramic glimpse can be given here of its difficulties and complications, of which the learned New England judge evidently knew nothing, else would he not have handed down his off-hand decision. At first the bride, seeking with shining face to please the palate of her husband, pouring over books of a hundred soups, a hundred entrees and salads and desserts, and in her young wife's pride consulting yet more books, that her ceremonial luncheons may be marvels of daintiness and her suppers the envy of her husband's friends. And then the seasoned wife, considering first of all "what is good for him" and what is not. The food the physician once prescribed for him in illness she will serve up to him forever after, though he be grown rugged as a coalheaver, strong as a wrestler. And what the man of science forbade him then she will withhold from him until the last, or serve with trembling anxiety, in silent protest or spoken warning. She never forgets, nor does her watchfulness ever relax. Yet will she, with all her cook-books and experience, never omit to ask him, rising replete from breakfast, what is his preference for dinner.

Jack Spratt and his wife lived in another age. Their cook, if they had one, was unquestionably of their own race and had school of epikery, and it is evident that they had no children. Still, as examples of domestic wisdom, they continue to teach a lesson, while at the same time proving that the question of the domestic commissariat is not one of those new marriage problems of which we continue to hear so much, but probably as old as the institution of matrimony itself. —New York Tribune.

REASON FOR SUSPICION.

In a country police court recently a man was charged with shooting a number of pigeons, the property of a farmer. In giving his evidence the farmer was so careful that he even seemed nervous and the solicitor for the defense endeavored to frighten him. "Now," he remarked, "are you prepared to swear on oath that this man shot your pigeons?" "I didn't say he did shoot them," was the carefully worded reply. "I said I suspected him of doing it." "Ah, now we're coming to it. What made you suspect that man?" "Well, firstly, I caught him on my land with a gun. Secondly, I heard a gun go off, and saw some pigeons in his pocket—and I don't hardly think the birds flew there and committed suicide."—Ideas.

BILLION FOR WARSHIPS

If the naval program of the general board be carried into effect, the United States will authorize approximately one thousand millions for warships in 1912. The experts who are acting as advisers to Secretary Meyer believe that the country, to keep pace with the demands made upon it, ought to build four new battleships, sixteen destroyers, repair ship, submarine boat tenders, colliers, gunboats, mine-laying vessel and hospital ship. At least four battleships, it is argued, are necessary, inasmuch as four of America's "first line" will each be twenty years old in 1914. Presumably the antiquated list would include the armored cruiser New York, keel laid in 1890; battleship Oregon (1891), battleship Massachusetts (1891); armored cruiser Brooklyn (1893), and battleship Iowa (1893). All of these ships have undergone eventful service, the most distinguished, by all odds, being the Oregon. That historic ship has practically been rebuilt and is now more formidable than when she doubled the Horn and appeared off Santiago in trim for the battle which wiped out Cervera's fleet. Even with the Oregon improved, a ship of that class would be no match whatever for the Dreadnoughts of the present day. Of the three battleships on the list given, the Iowa leads in displacement, with 11,346 tons. Her inferiority from present day standards is shown by the displacement of ships like the Arkansas and the Wyoming, each of which has 26,000 tons. The horsepower of the Iowa is 11,933; of the Arkansas, 28,000. In speed, the new battleships are scheduled for 20 knots, while a swift cruiser like the Brooklyn is capable of 22. In armament the new ships completely overshadow the old. While the main battery of the Iowa, for example, includes four 12-inch breech-loading rifles, eight 8-inch breech-loading rifles and ten 4-inch rapid-fire guns, that of the Arkansas will have twelve 12-inch breech-loading rifles and twenty-one 5-inch rapid-fires. From a mathematical standpoint, therefore, the monster fighting-machines of the present day make their predecessors mere pygmies. Although the naval program has been outlined, an undoubtedly will be recommended in the forthcoming report of the Secretary of the Navy, there is little assurance that it will be followed. Congress, just prior to a Presidential year, will be rather more than ordinarily economical. Its committees, with their eyes on a national campaign and their ears harkening to the talk of universal peace, will be reluctant to subscribe to a plan of spending a thousand million of the people's money for warships. More than likely the number of battleships will be cut to two, and possibly to one—and the remainder of the list in proportion.—Seattle Times.

SLAUGHTER OF SEALS

Dr. William T. Hornaday, who is a leading authority on the protection of wild game, states that the investigation of the fur seal industry of Alaska by the House committee on expenditures in the department of commerce and labor has revealed damaging facts. Dr. Hornaday says: "The proof from the London fur market that nearly 8000 pup seals—and many of them females—were killed last year, utterly contrary to law, under the shadow of the American flag is, in my opinion, absolutely incontrovertible; and, incidentally, most damaging to the department of commerce and labor." Dr. Hornaday has sent on a copy of the first number of the hearings before the committee, containing the testimony of Mr. Henry W. Elliott, concerning the itemized list of 12,920 skins in the official report of the bureau of fisheries, given last January to 'The Fur Trade Review.' The testimony reads: "Now, in that list of 12,920 there are 8000 of them classified as small pups and ex. am. pups, which sold at an average of about 128 shillings. Bear that in mind. The size above them, the middling pups, which grade in between the large two-year-olds and the small three-year-olds, sold for 164 shillings. So you can see that there is a jump there. These small pups and ex. sm. pups, 8000 of them, are all classified this way in London; each one has a mark traced directly from the head to tail of its fleshy skin side, and on that mark the measurements of its length is placed, and then each one of those 8000 skins has a mark traced directly across the flippers, called the girth mark, and on the girth mark the inches are placed. These measurements are certified in here as the measurements of small pups, ex. sm. pups and ex. ex. sm. pups. In 1872 when there were millions more seals than now, the native and white clubbers were instructed to take 'nothing under a seven-pound skin.' The 'ex. ex. small pups,' noted above, known on the islands as 'runts,' yield skins of 'ex. am. pups' known as 'eyeplasters,' are five and one-half pounds and those of 'small pups' and 'middling pups,' even when preserved with salt, which makes them heavier than the 'green' skins, fall under the seven pound limit. The killing of seals is prohibited, save under a special dispensation of the secretary of commerce and labor. Mr. Elliott charges that Secretary Nagel, being ill-advised, has exceeded his discretionary power, so that the seal herd is being exterminated, through the wholesale slaughter of its young.

IMPORTANCE OF SEINE

There is in France no other trunk line waterway so important as the River Seine between Havre and Paris, a distance of 231 miles by river and 142 miles by rail. This river, connecting not only Paris, but the richest and most fertile portions of interior France with the seaport of Havre, is a striking example of a waterway in which the services of canal and river are directly combined. At Havre, and from that port to Rouen, it has the maritime aspect; beyond Rouen, Paris for approximately 120 miles it is the canal or canalized river to Mery-sur-Seine, the head of its navigation. Its total navigable length is 345 miles (563 kilometers). The work on the Seine itself has involved a total expenditure of $25,000,000. While it is true that the railroad rates and the rates on the canals and rivers of France are fixed by the government, and hence do not show the results of national competition, it is interesting to study the rail and water rates between Paris and Havre, for example, flour by water $1.93 per ton, by rail $1.93; grain by water $1.93, by rail $1.93; lumber by rail $1.64, and $1.64 by water; wine, $4.05 by rail, and $3.47 by water. This traffic all passes via the Tancarville canal. The work on the Seine, together with the construction of the great Eastern canal (Canal de l'Est), was undertaken shortly after the establishment of the republic upon the overthrow of Napoleon III. This Canal de l'Est is only nominally a canal. It includes the improved sections of the Meuse and Saone connected by canal. The entire route is 268 miles and the work cost about 100,000,000 francs ($20,000,000). From Paris traffic from the northern provinces and Belgium goes through the Seine, as does the traffic intended for the west via Rouen and Havre. The traffic of the Seine has trebled within the last 15 years. The waterways of Northern France handle the export business to and from Belgium, Holland and Germany, as well as other foreign countries reached through the French ports along the English channel.

Bachelor Musings

Digging takes out more potatoes than profound thought about it. The bravest soldier is the man in a family squabble. It's a holiday outing when a man goes off with his friends, and hard labor with his family. It's a great extravagance to have any money in your pocket, because you can't help spending it.

MISS ETHEL CAMERON of Alameda, a bride-to-be.
—Scharz, Photo.

RS. FREDERICK STOLF and her daughter, Miss Carmen Stolf, returned last night from a sojourn on their ranch, and will leave again in a week or two for the country. The exact destination of their journey has not been settled. Mrs. Stolf will be hostess tomorrow night at a theater party at the Macdonough, when the guests will witness Ethel Barrymore's performance, and will afterward attend a local cafe for supper.

The Kendall Morgans are expected home tonight from their ten days' outing.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Neville have returned from an enjoyable sojourn at Idlewild.

ON LAKE TAHOE SHORES.

Mrs. A. T. MacDonald and her little son and daughter are spending the months of July and August at the summer home of her father, A. E. Horton, on the shores of Lake Tahoe.

AT CLOVERDALE.

Mrs. Charles Kydd and Paul Kydd are spending the month of July at the J. B. Cooley home in Cloverdale.

SUMMER SOJOURNS.

Miss Luette Mauvais is spending the summer at the family country home near Glen Ellen, and family are in the "Rocky" mountains spending some delightful days.

Miss Florence Williams leaves in a day or two for a trip to the Yosemite. Miss Muriel Williams will be the guest of Miss Beaver at Inverness, and Miss Corinne will visit at Saratoga.

MOTORED TO DEL MONTE.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Macdermott, with Miss Lillian Isaacs as their guest, motored down to Del Monte.

The Louis Macdermotts make their home at the St. Francis, but during the absence of Mrs. Charles Macdermott and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Proctor, who are traveling in Europe, are occupying the Macdermott home in Eighth street, Oakland.

Mrs. Macdermott and the Proctors were present at the coronation ceremony in London, and when least heard from, were spending delightful days in Paris. They will not return to Oakland until late in the year.

AT TAHOE.

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Schaeffer are spending their honeymoon at Lake Tahoe, and upon their return will make their home in Berkeley. Mrs. Schaeffer was Miss Eleanor Traub.

TO RETURN THIS WEEK.

Mrs. William Schrock and Miss Edna Schrock will return home this Friday from Cloverdale.

STILL IN TOWN.

Miss Edith and Miss Ethel Cameron are among the Alameda girls still in town. The Misses Cameron will leave later in the summer. They have both been much entertained since the announcement of their engagements.

LEASE HOME AT BROOKDALE.

The H. C. Capwells have leased their summer home at Brookdale to Mrs. Harold Ward of Alameda, and will leave next month for Europe.

TO ARRIVE FROM WASHINGTON.

Fay city folk are anticipating with pleasure the arrival of Mrs. A. M. Talbot and her daughter, Miss Amy Talbot, of Washington, D. C., who are at present in the Southern part of the State. The Talbots will come to this city the latter part of the month, where they will be entertained by friends. A number of the younger girls here were classmates of Miss Talbot at a fashionable school in the East, and she will no doubt be showered with social favors upon her arrival.

IN BURLINGAME.

Miss Helen Glenn is spending the summer at Burlingame as the guest of her cousin, Mrs. William Greer Hitchcock.

Mrs. Glenn and her daughter will leave in a few days for Chicago to visit Mrs. Edwin Guerin (Ester Glenn).

LEAVE FOR GERMANY.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rieley Hearn, who have been living at Cloyne Court, leave this week for Hamburg.

VISIT AT COUNTRY PLACE.

The A. A. Moore's country place has been kept open all summer, and the John J. Valentines, Jr., and Walter Starrs are frequent visitors there.

WOMEN IN THE NEWS HIGH-BROW TALK WEIGHTMAKER, SHE SAYS

Nan Aspinwall Warns Effete East, and Will Proceed to Show 'Em.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Pretty little Nan Aspinwall, the daring young girl who completed on Saturday her ride from San Francisco to New York, the longest journey on horseback ever taken by man or woman, is out to reform the "effete" East.

She announced today that she would begin with the society women of Newport and will ride to that fashionable resort on her famous Lady Ellen, the mare on which she made her trip. For the last month, she says, she has been in correspondence with several society women who desire to learn lariat throwing to reduce their weight.

"Eastern women, stranger, are too much home bodies," said this young woman. "They get fat quickly and altogether too young."

"And the relief lies not in massage parlors or beauty treatments or rolling, or water drinking or fasting, but in fun and out-of-door exercises."

"You know you cannot reduce fat permanently without making muscle and my stunt is to make muscle for these women who have got all run down from dances and teas and high-brow talk."

"Believe me, high-brow talk is a terrific weightmaker."

"I am going to teach them lariat throwing. It's got the old line of archery beaten to a standstill, you can take that square, stranger, and as for reducing weight, you can't beat it."

"I went out on the bridge path in Central Park and I was dumbfounded at what you Easterners call 'riding.' Most of the men and women stick up like sticks and don't half enjoy the movement of the horse. I'd just like to stay here long enough to give these people a chance at some real pleasure."

"Another reason I am anxious to get to Newport is that I'll have a chance to meet Miss Eleanor Sears. I think she is the one real, honest-to-God girl of the East. She would have been a dandy if she hadn't been born in society, for she's full of punk."

American Wife Balks the Plan of Count

Chicago Wins Race With Reno for This Divorce

Wife of Captain Burnell Gunther, who beat him to the divorce courts.

CHICAGO.—Chicago, "the world's greatest summer resort," has taken a fall out of Reno, "the world's greatest divorce resort." Mrs. Edith William Gunther, who stayed here and enjoyed the lake breeze, won a divorce from Captain Burnell Gunther, who still is perched up in the Nevada desert, where he went to obtain dissolution of his marital ties before his wife could accomplish her purpose.

Judge Richard S. Tutthill in the Superior Court ordered the decree prepared separating the plaintiff in the Chicago action from the son of Charles F. Gunther, millionaire candy manufacturer. A substantial alimony settlement will be made on Mrs. Gunther, who made a sensational charges against her husband.

The history of the Gunthers' matrimonial tangles is a long story of jockeying on both sides. It has been nip and tuck between the warring husband and wife for many months as to which was to triumph. Mrs. Gunther charged at one time that her husband sent her to visit her own people in Minnesota so that he could take the first steps to a divorce.

BEATS RENO RESIDENCE LAW.

After Captain Gunther went to Reno to establish the necessary residence law, Mrs. Gunther got exceedingly busy and as soon as she could line up the necessary witnesses she took her case to the Cook county courts. Attorney Daniel P. Trude was her counsel, while Captain Gunther was represented by the law firm of Richberg & Richberg. Attorney Trude declined yesterday to name the amount of alimony settled upon Mrs. Gunther.

Mrs. Gunther said that she was forced to leave Captain Gunther June 1, 1910, because of his drunkenness and "general misconduct." Other witnesses testified in regard to Gunther's habits and relations with other women.

Joseph Anderson, a janitor and watchman, who has been employed at the West Side factory of the Gunther Candy Company, told of a number of instances when he took care of Gunther while he was under the influence of liquor. On one occasion Gunther took a woman to the office and they consumed a quantity of liquor, Anderson testified.

Robert G. Hutt, owner of a drug store at West Adams and South Halsted streets, who knew Gunther, testified that Gunther told him of a number of visits to resorts in the levee.

"He also told me about his relations with a woman who was known as the 'Little Tease,'" Hutt testified.

Denies Wrongdoing and Her Fight Stirs Rome.

ROME.—There are several versions of the matrimonial difficulties of Count Pasolini, son of the well known historian and senator. His wife was formerly Miss Montague of Chattanooga, Tenn., whose sister married another nobleman in Florence. By some it is affirmed and by others denied that a young Irishman, an intimate friend of Count Pasolini, was connected with the trouble that caused the pretty countess to leave the Eternal city suddenly and unexpectedly for her native land.

There is uncertainty as to whether she went alone or was accompanied by the chivalrous Irishman.

Pasolini's family was furious at the scandal and also at the American press, which indulged itself in all kinds of revelations. The count's relations thought divorce would put an end to the gossip, but were confronted with a difficulty which unexpectedly came in the opposition of the countess herself, who declared he had done nothing blamable.

Some of the countess' friends here say if any one is to be blamed it should be Count Pasolini, who should never have married her. The question put on these lines would have led not to divorce, which cannot be obtained in Italy, but to the annulment of the marriage, which is admitted under certain circumstances by the Italian law.

However, it could not be expected that the Pasolini family would have brought forward in public debate such a plea even to obtain what they desire most—namely, to break entirely every tie with the countess.

Lawyers have provided them with another plea, which is now under examination before the courts—viz., annulment of the marriage because it was performed in Italy with a declaration of the American consul that as prescribed in the Italian law, Miss Montague was quite free to marry.

As the American state department has issued an order to consuls prohibiting them to make such a declaration, Pasolini's lawyers maintain the marriage is null because performed through the use of illegal documents.

WIDOW DRAWS UP TEN COMMANDMENTS

ST. LOUIS.—Edward F. Winkler, clerk of St. Clair county, Ill., and former mayor of Belleville, has married a widow who laid down ten commandments which he will be expected to obey.

The bride, who was Mrs. Mamie Smith, 1929 Pigott avenue, East St. Louis, met County Clerk Winkler a year ago, when she went to Belleville to protest against the amount of a tax bill.

Her ten commandments for her husband are as follows:

- Thou shalt have no other sweetheart before me.
- Honor thy father and thy mother.
- Thou shalt not lie.
- Thou shalt be honest in all thy dealings.
- Thou shalt pay all just debts.
- Thou shalt not imbibe strong drink.
- Thou shalt not be avaricious.
- Thou shalt not be averse to hard labor.
- Thou shalt love thy wife above all other women, and thy neighbor as thyself.
- Thou shalt not use profane language.

The bride, although but 25 years old, is an experienced business woman. Since the death of her father, Silas Koons, a year ago, she has been the active head of the Koons Coal Company in East St. Louis.

As Mrs. Smith, the widow, she wrote her ten commandments for husbands shortly after her father's death. Her offering appeared in a newspaper and gained her considerable publicity. At the end of the tenth commandment she said: "Whosoever shall do these commandments will find favor in my sight."

It was shortly after that she had occasion to visit the county clerk at Belleville and protest against her tax bill. Winkler had read the commandments, and decided he could live up to them if it was necessary to find favor in her sight. Their friendship ripened into love.

"I do not believe I shall have to enforce the commandments," said the bride. "Mr. Winkler has been living up to them for a year, and I am certain he will continue to do so."

It was all the fault of the glorious Fourth, which was celebrated in Ontario in the good, old-fashioned way. Johnson was rooming at the home of Mrs. Charles Goodro. He had gone over to his own new little home in the neighborhood, which was well furnished, even to dishes, to do a little settling. They had not been absent from the Goodro home fifteen minutes when Mrs. Goodro's little son Harvey came running to say the house was on fire. It is supposed it was set on fire. It is supposed it was set on fire by the firecrackers with which Harvey had been celebrating.

The house was burned to the ground and not a possession of Johnson's was saved, in spite of his heroic efforts to get something out.

His clothes caught fire several times and he inhaled the fire from an exploding lamp, burning his lungs quite badly. What will be the program when the bride and her mother-in-law arrive tonight Johnson knows as little as anyone. The officials here helped him by making affidavit that his marriage license had been destroyed. So he will be able to obtain another when he wishes.

Elopers Forgiven

PORTLAND, Ore., July 10.—Eben Whitney Chaffee arrived in Portland from California yesterday with his pretty telephone girl bride, with whom he eloped from Los Angeles to be married in San Francisco. A Union depot when the Shasta Limited rolled in, the couple were met by Mrs. H. F. Chaffee, mother of the bridegroom, who forgave them both.

Mrs. Chaffee had not a word of reproach for the elated youngsters, and as the comely little daughter-in-law stepped from the Pullman, Mrs. Chaffee embraced her in a true maternal manner and exclaimed:

"Oh, you little dear," then, turning to her son, she commented in equally cordial terms: "You think you are very smart, don't you?" With this salutation the trio called a taxi and hurried to the mother's apartments in the Imperial hotel, where they remained until the departure of the train a few hours later for their home at Astoria, S. D.

N. E. A. DELEGATES THROG GREEK THEATER

MODERN EDUCATORS MEET AMID CLASSIC SCENES TYPIFYING LORE OF THE ANCIENTS

Ideal California Weather and Welcome Greets Convention

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, July 10.—In surroundings typifying the best of the civilization and education of ancient Greece, the forty-ninth convention of the National Education Association opened its first session this afternoon in the Greek Theater. The educators were welcomed to California by Governor Hiram W. Johnson, Mayor F. H. McCarthy of San Francisco, C. C. Moore, president of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California. Gracious response was made on behalf of the delegates by Robert J. Aley, president of the University of Maine, William E. Pringle, chairman of the California Organization for the San Francisco convention, and others.

After an address by President Ella Flagg Young of the association, outlining the work of the convention, the State delegations met to select members of the nominating committee, and a committee on resolutions was appointed.

GREEK THEATER THROG.

Delegates from the entire country began assembling in Berkeley early this afternoon and by 3:30 o'clock, at which hour the session opened, the Greek Theater was thronged. Besides members of the association there were in attendance many teachers of the State, including those enrolled as students at the summer session of the university.

Early in the afternoon the educators began to seek choice seats in the big amphitheater, to listen to a band concert and be ready for the convention session.

HOOR OF MUSIC.

An hour of music was given by Williams' concert band, the program being as follows:

March—"Daughters of the American Revolution".....Lampe
Selection from Offenbach, arranged by Potpourri.....Godfrey
March, "Pro Patria".....Roncovieri
Overture, "William Tell".....Rossini
The principal speaker of the afternoon was David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford University, who discussed "The Relation of Education to Society."

The session opened with an invocation by Rev. William Kirk Guthrie of the First Congregational church of San Francisco.

Dr. Jordan was followed by Helen Marsh Wilson, state superintendent of public instruction, in Denver, Col., who spoke on "The Cause of Education."

MEETING OF MEMBERS.

At the close of the formal program there was a meeting of the active members by states to elect members of the committee on nominations. The Greek Theater was divided for this purpose into as many sections as there are states represented. Admission to these state meetings will be during the convention, by action, by membership certificate and not by badge.

Admission to all general and department sessions, will be by membership badge until five minutes before the hour for opening.

This evening a general reception to President Ella Flagg Young and the members of the N. E. A. will be held in the Pavilion rink, corner Sutter and Pierce streets, San Francisco. There will be arrangements for state reunions and in active musical program will be given.

REPORTS SUBMITTED.

The treasurer's report and the report of the board of trustees, received during the day, show that the association is faring well financially. The treasurer's report shows $300,000 in the association's permanent fund, and the board's report shows $300,000 added to this fund in the course of the year. The association's receipts are given as $43,909, and its expenditures as $24,973.

The trustees' report on the permanent fund, and the treasurer's report of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, ex-officio member of the board, Mrs. Young has criticized the method of managing the fund several times since she took office.

Tomorrow Is 'Oakland Day' for Delegates to N. E. A. Convention

"Oakland Day" of the National Education Association convention will be celebrated in this city tomorrow. Elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the visiting teachers have been made under the auspices of committees of the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Education, and it is expected that many delegates to the great convention will be recipients of Oakland's hospitality and spectators of the city's attractions.

The program as outlined by the committee having the affair in charge, which is composed of F. A. Leach Jr., Superintendent of City Schools, J. W. McClymonds, A. Denison, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Principal P. M. Fisher of the Polytechnic High school, and officials of the Oakland Traction Company, includes extensive car rides and a reception in the late afternoon at Idora Park.

PROVIDE SPECIAL CARS.

The Oakland Traction Company will run special cars for the visitors and has arranged an excursion fare for the trip, which entitles the delegates coming from San Francisco to transportation to and from that city and a tour to Hayward and return by way of Alameda. Or if the visitors prefer to see the city proper and go to Berkeley, Piedmont and other near-by points, they may do so.

The fare for the entire trip has been set at fifty cents.

Visitors will be brought to this city via the Key Route. Those going to Hayward will be taken to the station at Twenty-second and Broadway, where they will be met by a reception committee representing the Progress and Prosperity Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and there special cars will be in waiting. Each special car will be accompanied by a special conductor and inspector, who will explain the points of interest along the way to the sight-seers, and the route will lay through San Francisco and Alameda to Hayward.

will be able to get a general impression of the city's attractions. Those preferring to visit Piedmont, Berkeley and other places will be directed how to do so by the committees stationed at the Key Route Inn.

AT MOSSWOOD PARK.

A reception will be given to visiting kindergartners at Mosswood Park, corner College and Moss avenues, from 2 to 4 o'clock p. m. Automobiles will be at the park at 4 o'clock to give the visitors an opportunity to see Oakland and vicinity.

One of the points of interest to be visited by the members of the N. E. A. during their stay in Oakland will be Idora Park. A reception will be tendered the officers of the association by a committee representing Oakland in the grill at Idora Park and light refreshments will be served.

COMMITTEE'S PERSONNEL.

On the committee are A. A. Denison, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; J. W. McClymonds, city superintendent of schools; Frank K. Leach Jr., director of the Chamber of Commerce, and P. M. Fisher, principal of the Oakland Polytechnic high school. After the reception the visitors will enjoy the afternoon concert to be played by Weber's band.

On Wednesday delegates to the N. E. A. convention will be entertained at Mills College, Oakland, by Mrs. Susan Mills, the founder of the institution; Luella Clay Carson, its president, and a large number of the alumni. President Carson has recently returned from Portland to be present on this occasion.

An elaborate exhibit of the art work of the pupils of the primary and grammar grades of San Francisco's public schools were opened at the Art Institute this morning.

Municipality Will Contribute to N. E. A. Entertainment Fund

Oakland as a city will contribute to the entertainment of the 12,000 teachers of the National Education Association, who will be guests on this side of the bay tomorrow. The city council this morning decided to contribute to the entertainment fund which has been raised by the community civic bodies to make the day in Oakland a pleasant one.

This is the first time the city has been able to take action of this kind, as the new charter for the first time provides a municipal entertainment fund to be established for such occasions. As the fund has not been formally created as yet, the contribution was appropriated from the general fund, on the motion of Councilman William J. Buchanan.

A. A. Denison, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and Superintendent of Schools J. W. McClymonds appeared before the council to urge the appropriation. He said the funds of the city are somewhat depleted, the sum of $100 has been appropriated by resolution of the council.

Reception for the N. E. A. Delegates This Evening Across Bay

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—The concert and reception to the N. E. A. teachers in Pavilion Rink tonight is the next to be given for the benefit of the entertainment fund. By that time it is expected that all of the delegates will have arrived and will make a crowd that will tax the big hall.

The care of this immense gathering of 12,000 club women will be in attendance. There will be committees and sub-committees. The different States will have places for the reunions.

A number of prominent educators will be in the receiving line, among whom the following have signified their intention of attending: Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, Governor and Mrs. Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, Mrs. Ebebe, Mrs. Hearst, Dr. David Starr Jordan, Mrs. Mary Kincaid, Miss May L. Cheney, Mrs. Susan M. Mills, Superintendent and Mrs. Hyatt, Superintendent and Mrs. Roncovieri, Superintendent and Mrs. Mark Keppel, Superintendent and Mrs. McLane, Superintendent and Mrs. James A. Barr and Superintendent Duncan MacKinnon.

The Teachers' Council will hold informal receptions at Golden Gate Hall, 2137 Sutter street, tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, from 8 to 11 o'clock. The hall has been beautifully decorated and a large special treat has been served each evening. A special treat has been provided for Wednesday evening in the singing of J. W. Warrall, a Spanish baritone. All teachers and their friends are invited to these receptions. Admission by N. E. A. badge or card of invitation. The rooms of the association at 2137 Sutter street will be maintained as rest rooms for all members of the N. E. A. during the afternoons of July 11, 12 and 13.

Hayward Prepared to Welcome N. E. A. Delegates Tomorrow

HAYWARD, July 10.—Extensive preparations have been made by the residents of Hayward to welcome the delegates to the National Education Association convention upon their arrival here tomorrow. Committees of business men will meet each car from Oakland and will escort the visitors to the rooms of the Hayward Chamber of Commerce, where an informal reception will be held. The efforts of the business men to entertain the visitors will be ably seconded by the ladies of Hayward.

Auto trips to points of interest in the vicinity of Hayward form a portion of the itinerary of the day. Among other points visited will be the state game farm. Refreshments will be provided, and every effort be made to demonstrate to the visiting teachers how very glad Hayward is to have them here.

AGED MAN JAILED BY U. S. OFFICIAL

John C. Risteen Arrested for Intercepting Registered Letter.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Scion of a distinguished Massachusetts family, former member of the legislature of that state, and a scholar of more than ordinary attainment, John C. Risteen, 70 years old, was arrested at Woodside in San Mateo county today by United States Marshal Elliott. He was arraigned this morning before United States Commissioner Wright on a charge of intercepting a registered letter.

He is accused of signing for and opening a missive which was directed to Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Morse, a blind couple, residing at 770 Natoma street. Risteen is said to have been the manager for the pair, and it is alleged that he kept part of the $25 which the letter contained. He holds that as his signature was not on the letter, the government he is not liable to prosecution.

KOHL'S ASSAILANT NO ABATEMENT OF HEAT IN NEW YORK

Assistant District Attorney Declares Adele Verge Is Insane.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Adele Verge, a young woman who shot and wounded C. Frederick Kohl, the local millionaire and capitalist, was arraigned before Police Judge Shortall today. It was intimated by the court and district attorney that she would be sent to an insane asylum. Kohl was too ill to be present and the court stated that he desired the insanity commission to file a report and if they held the defendant to be insane he would dismiss the case.

Assistant District Attorney Morris Oppenheim gave it as his opinion that Miss Verge is of unsound mind, and as she twice attempted to take her own life in the city prison and was for a long period confined to the detention hospital, this seems to be the general verdict. The case was continued until Wednesday.

Moroccan Negotiations Are Kept Confidential

Exchanges On Friendly Footing; According to Officials; Will Be Prolonged.

BERLIN, July 10.—Preliminary negotiations regarding Morocco are being held confidentially, but nothing is made public officially beyond the joint statement that the exchanges are on friendly footing and that it is expected they will be prolonged. For this stage, at least, the negotiations are confined to Germany and France, though the other interested powers are kept informed.

DAVILLA NEAR FIGHT BLOODY SLEUTHS SEEK VENEZUELAN SHORES DUEL OVER GIRLS MISSING LETTERS

Castro's Closest Friend Lands Secretly on Buena Ayre Island.

Deposed President Gathers an Army Together for Another Bold Attack.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, July 10.—A wireless message from Buena Ayre Island announces that General Jose Antonio Davilla landed on the island secretly Saturday night, having arrived from Venezuela. Davilla is one of the sixty-three men who, led by General Cipriano Castro years ago, invaded the state of Tachira, Ven. from Colombian territory. He is Castro's close friend.

Later advices prove untrue Saturday's report that the president of the state of Zulia, Venezuela, had been killed by a bomb explosion.

According to the best information obtainable, Castro, the deposed president of Venezuela, is now on the western frontier of Venezuela at the head of a thousand or more men engaged in enlisting an army with which he proposed to repeat his exploit of twelve years ago, when he overthrew the government and placed himself in the presidency.

Buena Ayre, or Bon Aire is a Dutch West Indian island about 65 miles north of the coast of Venezuela and 30 miles east of Curacao.

One Youth Dead and Brother Is Dying as Result of Battle.

Pistols and Knives Used by Missouri Farmers to End Dispute.

STURGEON, Mo., July 10.—In a duel fought over two girls between Frank and Melvin White and John Spencer and Jake Wade at the town of Riggs, seven miles south of here, Saturday night, both the White boys were mortally wounded, Frank dying Sunday, according to word received here. His brother was expected to live but a few hours.

All four boys were farmers, about 22 years old, and until two weeks ago were the best of friends. The trouble started over the two sisters of John Spencer. The White boys are said to have threatened Wade with a revolver one day last week and it is believed the four met in Riggs by common consent to settle the affair.

The fight was with pistols and knives. Frank White was stabbed twice in the lung and his brother was stabbed six times. Spencer and Wade escaped uninjured.

Warrant May Be Issued for Man Accused of Taking Stokes' Epistles.

Tomorrow's Session Will Determine Fate of Hotel Man's Assaults.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The police, aided by the detectives of the defense, redoubled their efforts today to solve the mystery of the lost letters in the Stokes shooting case.

Tomorrow the court will receive the last evidence to show whether or not Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad should be held for the grand jury on the charge of trying to murder W. D. Stokes, the millionaire hotel man, and without their cause is badly handicapped. They admit they shot Stokes, but declare the circumstances which these letters would help reveal were such as to make the shooting justifiable.

The superintendent of the apartment house where the shooting occurred was summoned before Police Commissioner Waldo today. The commissioner is interested in the case on account of the charges that some of his men permitted Stokes' private detective to ransack Miss Graham's suite and carry away the bundle of letters while the city detectives were present.

NINE ARE WITHHELD.

The defendants say that the letters already had been returned in connection with the case were returned after nine or more which Stokes wished to suppress had been taken from the collection.

The defendants' lawyers said that when the examination is resumed tomorrow they will bring charges against the Stokes detective, who admitted on the stand that he had carried away the letters. Whether the charge would be largely for the suppression of evidence they had not decided.

Magistrate Freschi, who has been conducting the preliminary hearings, and District Attorney Whitman will confer with a view to deciding what action ought to be taken about the disappearance of the letters.

WILL ISSUE SUMMONS.

At the close of the examination tomorrow the magistrate probably will issue a summons for James Cummings, Stokes' private house detective. Formal proceedings will then begin to determine whether or not a crime has been committed.

Cummings swore he found the letters while the city detectives who accompanied him in his search of the girls' apartment were not looking. The new superintendent of the apartment has told the police commissioner that all letters in the apartment were removed by city officials on the night Stokes was shot.

Therefore, if Cummings in a second search, three days later, found the letters produced in evidence, as he swore in court, the commissioner believes some one must have "planted" them there, and the detective, having removed the eight or more letters missing.

COMPETITIVE 'XAM' FOR FIRE CHIEF

Ten Deputy Chiefs Are Trying for the Job in New York City.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Today marked the first stage in the examination of candidates for the post of New York fire chief, the most important place ever filled through competitive examination in the world. The examinations will be the most technical and scientific ever held. The new chief must have a knowledge of water pressure and of the intricate water system of New York City. The examination will cover the architecture of skyscrapers and lofty apartment houses, the use of explosives, the use of automobiles, a knowledge of chemistry, the use of chemicals in fighting fires, and the effect of chemicals in fires. The appointment is practically for life at a salary of $7000 a year.

Only the deputy fire chiefs—ten in number—are eligible to take the examination.

New England Textile Mills Resume Work

BOSTON, July 10.—More than 31,000 operatives employed in textile mills in various parts of New England resumed work today after shutdowns of varying lengths in accordance with the policy of curtailing production adopted by the mill managers.

CRITTENDEN ASSESSMENT WILL NOT BE CANCELLED

Board of Supervisors, Acting on District Attorney's Advice, Denies Petition; Routine Business Transacted

It was 11 o'clock this morning when Chairman Horner called the weekly meeting of the Board of Supervisors to order. Other members present were Supervisors Kelley, Foss, Mullins and Bridge.

The report of the county treasurer for the month of June was received and read. It showed a balance of $1,291,020.67 on hand in the county treasury on July 1.

On application of George A. Tepper of Newark for a liquor license, was ordered published according to law, and set for hearing on July 12.

A resolution was adopted transferring $1800 from the general road fund, 1910-11, to district road funds, as follows: Irvington, $1000; Mission, $300, and Warm Springs, $500.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

County Treasurer Kelly notified the board that there is now in the county treasury to the credit of the road and bridge fund $562.06, derived from the final settlement of state and county taxes. This money was authorized by the board to be apportioned according to law among the several district road funds.

CRITTENDEN ASSESSMENT.

With reference to the petition of William D. Crittenden for the cancellation of accumulated assessments on valuable property on Ocean Avenue, given on Twenty-third street, which it is proposed to improve by the erection of a hotel, on the theory that as a deed for the property had been issued for the state, it was state property, and, therefore, not subject to taxation, the district attorney this forenoon submitted to the Board of Supervisors an adverse opinion through Deputy District Attorney Leon A. Clark.

"I have informed Mr. Crittenden," says the district attorney, "that I will not consent to the cancellation of the assessment which he desires, for the reason that Mr. Crittenden claims that the assessment of this property under which the state was made, to the state is illegal and an action is now pending against the state to quiet title thereto. While this action is pending, I am of the opinion that it would not be for the best interests of Alameda county to cancel the assessments levied against this property."

Mosquito Swarms Fatally Sting Unconscious Victim

NEW YORK, July 10.—After having spent three days and nights in a swamp near Caldwell, N. J., Aaron Kennedy is dying from mosquito bite poisoning. He was out for huckleberries and wrenched his ankle so he could not walk. When he was found three days later, he was unconscious. He had bitten him until his features were swollen beyond recognition. He had fought the pests by building a fire and his rescuers found him lying unconscious near the ashes.

Trenton Methodist Church Girls Form Corps Militant

TRENTON, N. J., July 10.—Girls of the Broad Street Park Methodist Episcopal church here are to be taught the use of firearms. Under the direction of the church, the girls have organized the rangers' club. They are to be trained in artillery and sports. The object is to get them to defend themselves in case of an emergency.

LOCALS DIVIDE HONORS WITH ANGELS IN DOUBLE-HEADER

Morning Game Is a Slaughter for Berry-ries, but in P. M. Game Luck Favors Them

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—Oakland managed to break even in yesterday's games with the Angels which made the series five won for the Angels and three won for the Oaks. The opening affair was a slaughter, with Elmer Criger and his backers in the role of the unwilling offering. The matinee was a ball game, with both Delhi and Flater heaving over their slants in great form. Five double plays show the speed of the performance, but black marks chalked against Harry Wolverton's braves in the second canto gave the Dilonites the ace that proved the winning score. In the first inning with one down, Bernard made his appearance in the line-up with a screamer just out of Wolverton's reach and the doctor rested on the initial bag. Something seemed to be coming up with Daley at bat, but Peter hit into an easy double play, Cutshaw to Wares to Tiedemann, and the side was retired.

In the next session the music started in earnest. Moore got a life on a bad heavy by the Oaks chief that proved too much for Tiedemann to handle. Delmas contributed his share with a sacrifice that sent Moore to the middle sack, but the fleet-footed Angel did not stop here, but pranced on to third. The great Tiedemann shot the pill in the general direction of the final corner, a mile over Wolverton's head, and Moore came home.

Nothing more came up until the fourth. After Bernard went out Cutshaw to Tiedemann, Daley tripped to center. Moore waited for four wide ones. Bert Delmas stepped into the breach and slammed a high fly near the right field foul line that Hoffman handled after a hard run. Daley was off with the catch and made the platter safely.

The final spasm almost turned the tables. Zacher started the thing by fouling to Abbott. Hoffman laid down a perfect bunt, which "Flame" fumbled, and the Oaks was safe at first. John Tiedemann hit through the short field, Hoffman going to third. Preston, running for Tiedemann, stole second. Wolverton sent Hoffman home and Preston to third with an out at the first. Moore to Smith. Coy, batting for Mitze, stopped the spasm by fanning. This ended the inning and the game, and the Angels trotted off the field with another victory tucked safely in their belt.

SEALS DO BETTER.

San Francisco wound up a disastrous series, too, and after a week of play succumbed in getting two games and a tie out of eight played with the Hooglanders.

In the second game, the Oaks were leading until the ninth frame.

In the tenth frame, one of them a double, weren't enough to win, simply because somebody was afraid of soiling

Over the bay the Seals went after Raleigh and drove him from the hill and treated Sleepy Stanfield likewise.

In the eighth inning Vernon began to find trouble, Carlisle getting a homer in that round and the Seals were ordered another homer and two doubles, but the Seals had too big a lead.

EVERYBODY STILL HAS A CHANCE.

DIAMOND GOSSIP

Oakland will be home tomorrow, and over the bay will begin a series of seven games with the Seals. Both teams have gone through a most disastrous series and both will be fighting all the time to overcome the defeats that they suffered the Oaks in the hands of the Los Angeles team, and the Seals in the hands of Happy Hogan.

These things, though, happen in the best of regulated ball teams and all the fans on both sides of the bay can go to look alike before long.

Oakland went after the Angels in the morning session yesterday and gave Criger an awful lacing, scoring 11 runs in 14 hits. In the afternoon things did not break so well and though Flater out-pitched the mighty, Delhi luck was against him.

In the morning session Wolverton, Tiedemann and Flater combined to out-homer, Maggart and Hoffman gathered triples and Zacher laced out a double. Surely some hitting, this.

John Tiedemann has been filling in at first base for the Oaks during the lay-off of Monte Pitt, and the way the youngster has been souping the ball has been most gratifying to the fans and manager.

Captain Wolverton went to bat eight times in the south and four times he hit the pellet "where they ain't," as the saying is. From the way the boys do during the coming week.

Up to the seventh inning Oakland had only found Delhi for two hits, but after that they began to find him and if he looked like he was going to let them down, as if the Oaks would have been in.

Los Angeles had all the luck, according to the press dispatches for they gave their first run on a boot by Wolverton and another by Tiedemann. As for Flater, he pitched a swell game and no one can blame him for losing.

NEWARK, N. J., July 10. — For the first Sunday this season in the bicycle races at the Velodrome, Frank Kramer failed to win an event. So sure was the national champion of winning the one mile championship that he loafed for four and a half laps, and was beaten at his own tactics by Alfred Coultett in the final sprint. Eddie Root was third. Time, 3:05.1-5.

The ten-mile motor-paced race furnished thrills at all stages. Percy Lawrence of San Francisco won, leading Ray Duer of Los Angeles by less than five yards. Walter Demare of Pennsylvania was close behind Duer. Time, 15:28.

CROCKETT NINE DEFEATED.

CROCKETT, July 10.—The Crockett nine went down to defeat here yesterday afternoon in a game with the Hercules nine. The score was 19 to 5 in favor of the Hercules. Casey of the Crockett team was in poor form and was taken out of the game in the seventh inning.

The score:

Hercules . . . 19 5 2

Crockett . . . 5 2 1

Batteries—H. Peterson and Roth; Casey and Shea; Murphy.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Princeton came out on top with a point-score of 20 in the intercollegiate swimming races at Sheepshead Bay. The Volodromis, Princeton, was second with 10 and Brown with three points, beating out the College of the City of New York by a point. T. H. Robinson, Princeton, clipped five seconds off the intercollegiate record for the quarter-mile, covering the distance in 6:58. Walter of Pennsylvania won the one-mile race by over 100 yards.

J. BAUMGARTNER MAKES FAME AT UMPIRING

Former Oakland Man Shows Class in P. N. L.; Has Absolute Control.

A Portland paper gives space to the following boast for our old friend, Jakey Baumgartner, who has apparently made good in the Northwestern League:

"Today, we are introducing Jakey Baumgartner, a man of good living by a liberal use of his wits. There is hardly a professional sport or pastime that he has not turned to some financial account. He has exercised the 'bangtails at Emery' with his gold pen and has been batboy for the San Francisco and Oakland clubs, and finally, he has donned a baseball uniform, mounted a decrepit white horse with a microphone advertised in the Coast League games in the streets of San Francisco and Oakland when coin was not coming in fast enough. Jakey has pulled on the five-ounce mitts and saved his punches in the prize ring. Jakey says he won every one of his twenty-seven fights, amateur and professional.

HURLED 400 FEET IN AUTO, WOMAN ONLY INJURED

Wife of Denver Man Hurt in Accident; Husband Leaps to Safety.

President of Colorado Securities Company Is Fatally Mangled in Crash.

ELDORADO SPRINGS, Col., July 10.—Hurled down 400 feet, bumping along the rocky mountain side in an automobile, Mrs. J. P. Baldwin, wife of the coiner of the mint at Denver, was picked up seriously injured, near here yesterday, and sent to Denver in a special car.

The accident happened on a steep road leading from the springs to Craig's resort on the Moffat road above here. Mrs. Baldwin and her husband were going to the resort to attend a house party at the cottage of Judge Allen of Denver. Baldwin and the chauffeur, the only other occupants of the car, jumped in time to save themselves.

Mrs. Baldwin was pinned by the steering gear and scurried down with the car to the bottom of the embankment. No bones were broken, but it was said at the hospital last night that Mrs. Baldwin will recover.

AUTO TURNS TURTLE.

ANNISTON, Ala., July 10.—J. D. Dill, a baker, was killed, Mrs. Mary Dill and Charles Dill probably fatally injured, and Mrs. Charlie Dill and Charles Dill, Jr. were seriously hurt last night when an automobile in which they were riding turned turtle. The accident occurred when the car attempted to avoid a collision with another automobile.

FATALLY INJURED.

DENVER, Col., July 10.—George P. Fuller, president of the Kraggs & Canon Securities Company, was fatally injured yesterday when he was struck by a car. The car was driven by a man who was driving on the wrong side of the street. Fuller was thrown clear of the machine and was crushed about the chest. Wigle was thrown clear of the machine.

CROWDS ATTEND RUMBALL TRIAL

Oroville, Cal., July 10.—The preliminary hearing of Mrs. Ella Rumball, charged with the murder of her stepdaughter, Helen Rumball, was begun today in a court room crowded to suffocation.

Up to the noon hour the only witnesses to be examined were Dr. L. L. Thompson and Dr. T. W. Thompson, two medical experts, who testified to finding the bruises made by the rope on the girl's arms, ankles and neck and other bruises on the body including finger prints on the right arm.

Preliminary Hearing of Women Charged With Slaying Stepdaughter

While M. Regelman of 1447 Webster street, and his family were out motoring last evening, burglars broke open a side window of the residence and looted the place, taking jewelry valued at $600 and $650 in coin.

Several diamond rings, scarf-pins, gold watches, cuff-links and other jewelry was taken by the thieves.

The burglary was reported to the police this morning and an investigation made. The burglary was apparently the work of professionals.

BURGLARS HAVE A BUSY NIGHT HERE

KEHOE ACCUSES DEAD OF FRAUD

Lays Claim to Estate Awarded Wife of Judge Van Nostrand

Although Julia Leeper Kehoe has been dead since February, 1909, and had been divorced from Peter Kehoe for a year prior to that time, by a final decree entered by Judge John Ellsworth, the deceased's former husband came into the Superior Court this forenoon with a sensational complaint to have the divorce annulled, on the ground that it was obtained through fraud and perjury, in order that he may take legal steps to claim the estate of more than $15,000 that Mrs. Kehoe left.

SAN FRANCISCANS TO CELEBRATE IN NORTH

PORTLAND, Ore., July 10.—To celebrate the choice of San Francisco for the Panama exposition of 1915, former San Francisco residents of Portland and those who have their homes in the bay city, but who are visiting here, planned to hold a monster gathering at Oaks Park next Friday evening. A special program of interest almost exclusively to San Franciscans and their friends is being arranged, among the features being the singing by Mrs. Joseph Dunfee of "My Heart Goes Back to San Francisco," the new song dedicated to the fair.

HAS LEG BROKEN BY A PASSING STREET CAR

While changing seats on a College avenue electric car about 7 o'clock this forenoon, William L. King, a plasterer, residing at 1226 Broadway, was struck by the United States mail car passing on the other track. He was knocked off and sustained a ugly fracture of the right leg, which was reduced by Dr. W. H. Irwin at the Receiving hospital.

NEW YORK SEEKING PAID FOR CIVIL WAR DEBT

NEW YORK, July 10.—After years of inactivity, another effort is to be made by New York City to recover from the Federal government the sum of $62,000, which the city spent in equipping soldiers for the Civil War. Experts from the comptroller's office are now looking into the history of the city's claim with a view to taking it up at once.

HIGH WATER DESTROYS PORTIONS OF BRIDGES

EL PASO, July 10.—High water destroyed today portions of the bridges across the Rio Grande at Canutillo and Chamblino, in the upper valley. The west end of the Chamblino bridge was washed out and one 60-foot span of the Canutillo bridge is gone.

ANARCHIST PLOT UNCOVERED.

BUENOS AIRES, July 10.—What is believed to be an anarchist plot has been uncovered by the police. Two Italian anarchists were arrested. A search of their house revealed it to be a regular bomb factory.

MCCARTHY'S AUTO BREAKS LEG OF OAKLAND BOY

VICTOR HERMANN, aged 13 years, who was run down on his bicycle in Oakland yesterday by an automobile in which Mayor P. H. McCarthy and a group of friends were riding. The lad's left leg was broken.

Victor Hermann, 13 years old, living at 1314 Twelfth street, was run down and seriously injured at 1:30 yesterday afternoon by an automobile in which Mayor P. H. McCarthy of San Francisco and five of his friends were riding.

The boy had his left leg broken and a bicycle which he was riding was wrecked. It is said the chauffeur of Mayor McCarthy's car was driving on the wrong side of the street to avoid a street car at Twelfth and Market streets. McCarthy's machine was running west in Twelfth street, between the street car tracks, and behind the eastbound trolley car young Hermann was riding his bicycle toward Broadway.

CLOSE TO CURB.

As the street car stopped at Market street Hermann swerved to the right and went close to the curb in passing the car. As the car started to move forward, the bicycle and he was thrown off. Though his leg was broken, he was not rendered unconscious.

Mayor McCarthy left his automobile, picked up the injured boy and carried him into the machine. He ordered the chauffeur to drive to the home of the lad's father, G. A. Hermann, who is a San Francisco merchant tailor.

The name of the chauffeur who was driving the car was known. Captain of Police Lynch telephoned to the San Francisco Police a request that the mayor be notified to send his chauffeur here tomorrow morning to be charged with battery or with violating the traffic ordinance.

What you can do with changeable needles

Learn the advantages of changeable needles in playing the Victor, and you will find in it new charms and beauties.

The Victor Needle produces the full tone as originally sung or played and is particularly suited for playing records in large rooms, halls, etc., and for dancing.

The Victor Half-tone Needle produces a volume of tone about equivalent to what you would hear if seated in the third or fourth row of the dress circle at the opera house or theatre—a splendid needle for general home use.

The Victor Fibre Needle is particularly suited to the discriminating music lover, and reproduces Victor Records with all their clarity and brilliancy in a slightly modulated tone. With this needle, your records will last forever. Victor Fibre Needles may be repointed eight to ten times and used as often as repointed.

For 50 cents and 22 cents for return registered postage, we will alter your Exhibition Sound-box so you can use Victor Fibre or Steel Needles at pleasure.
Or, on payment of 50 cents and 44 cents to cover cost of registered postage both ways, your dealer will forward it for you.

Victor Talking Machine Co., Camden, N. J.

Always use Victor Records, played with Victor Needles—there is no other way to get the unequalled Victor tone.

JOE WELCH IS TOPLINER OF GREAT PROGRAM AT BELL

JOE WELCH, famous Hebrew comedian, at the Bell.

Joe Welch, the eminent Hebrew comedian, is at the Bell Theater this week. "Nuf sed." There never has been a man who has been as popular as Joe Welch. Perhaps there is no other one person now appearing on the vaudeville stage that is receiving so much attention as Joe Welch. And why—because Joe Welch is a real top-liner, a feature, and in his act at the Bell Theater this week there is every evidence why he is such a big drawing card. His little skit "A Study From Life," is replete with those homely humorisms that has made him famous and made his act a hummer on every bill he participates in. He is presenting a real Hebrew type, not a caricature, but a study that is as amusing to the people of his own race as it is to the Gentile.

Two little chaps are assisting him and both are extremely clever youngsters. You'll laugh yourself sick at his wit. You cannot help it. Nothing forced, nothing strained, and the wonder of it all is that perhaps from other lips the keen humor would not be there. The three or four big Sunday audiences at the Bell yesterday were more than fully repaid just to hear Welch tell his experiences in a Hamman bath. This is, however, only one of the many excruciatingly funny yarns he pulls off. Every minute there's something new.

DRAWN FROM LIFE.

The type of Jew he presents is drawn from life. It's a homely character, whose humor is rich, whose heart is gentle and whose supreme pride in his two boys proves the motif for the side-splitting badinage that sends his audience into gales of laughter.

Don't miss hearing him, for he is unquestionably the greatest exponent of Hebrew comedy on the American stage.

Gretchen Spencer is a dashing little lady with a very fetching personality and a singing voice that she shows to good advantage in a number of new and different song numbers. The "Hello George" dancing boys, Bissett and Scott, are on the bill also and show some of the most difficult dancing that has ever been seen. They are pastmasters in both the buck and clog dances and marvels in matters terpsichorean.

EXPERTS ON SKATES.

A most notable pair of roller skaters in the persons of Sprague and McNeese, a wonderfully agile young man and an exceptionally pretty girl, produce an act that is right down to zero. There is nothing finer or more beautiful in this line and they execute most gracefully on rollers a whole lot of feats that many unskilled folks cannot begin to do on a more stable basis. The act is picturesquely set and the wardrobe is unusual.

An intensely dramatic little story of the West at an early date is the very satisfactory offering of the Lutteringer-Lucas Company in "A Girl of the West." The title of the skit strongly suggests melodrama, but the proverbial blood and thunder is absent from the general "business" of the production and such villainy as outcrops is of the subdued type. It is a clear, sweet story of the early pioneer days and is most excellently told. The Four Seymours get a big hand with their comedy act, "The Last Day of School," and Miss Seymour proves her versatility in a number of specialties.

$1,250,000 IS LOST
BY CAFE OWNERSNew York Restaurants Suffer
Because of the Hot Weather.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Strange as it may seem, the coolest place in the city during New York's recent hot scourge—the large restaurants in and around Broadway—are said to have lost more money than any other general business. The managers estimate that more than $1,250,000, which ordinarily would have been taken in at Broadway restaurants during the five or six days, was diverted into other channels.

In one hotel, which can accommodate 800 to 1000 persons, there were fifteen guests at dinner last Tuesday evening, yet the management had to pay hundreds of waiters and other employees. The next evening nine tables were occupied.

The automobile has played a stronger part this year than ever in the depletion of the summer restaurant's patronage. The reduction in the price and rental rates of good cars, hundreds of persons have been enabled to spend holidays, Sundays and week-ends on tours to seashore or country.

POSTER COWBOY BARRED BY WASHINGTON POLICE

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The westward course of empire has been checked by the ruthless police of Washington. The bewhiskered cowboy and the befeathered Indian mounted on the mettlesome bronco and carrying large revolvers in each hand will no longer be allowed to decorate the walls and fences of the capital in poster pictures. From now on the police minions will efface all such dare-devil portrayals of life in the West.

The young men of the city, says the chief of police, must be protected from the lure of the poster cowboy and stirring ambition to play countless Indians must be quelled in the bud.

Last week the police mutilated many yards of posters on the walls of Washington and to the rising generation of the city of statesmen the cowboy and Indian will be no more.

DYING COMPOSER
SINGS OWN SONGSJohn P. Jones Hums Compositions as Death Approaches.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Singing snatches from his own composition, John P. Jones, noted Welsh composer and vocalist, died yesterday at the age of 88. The 17-year-old daughter of the composer sat at the piano. The audience was made up of the four daughters of Jones—all teachers in Chicago public schools—who have kept house for him many years, and several other relatives and friends. As the play began to strum the melody of "Congress Street," Jones' favorite among the hymns of his own composition, the aged singer took up the words. Almost as clear and rounded as in earlier years, his voice rose above the accompaniment.

"Play again, child," the aged man requested. One after another he ran through the repertoire of his own compositions. Then came another request to the old "Eva," named by the composer after one of his daughters. After a few words, the old man's voice faltered and he was dead in a few minutes.

'GIFT OF TONGUES' SECT
ROLL IN HOT STRAW

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 10.—Thousands of spectators witnessed the sessions yesterday of the Pentecostal convention of the "Gift of Tongues," which is being held under tents at Homestead Park, with many delegates present from this country, Canada and Mexico. The principal speaker today was Rev. James Heiden of Toronto, Canada.

Interesting scenes featured the meetings. The worshippers, both men and women, rolled about the straw-covered floors of the tent. The temperature within was almost suffocating. Many of the worshippers became exhausted, and it was necessary to bathe their heads to revive them.

As they rolled and scrambled about the floor they howled, shrieked and groaned for a "manifestation" in the form of the "gift of tongues." None received it, however.

DOCTOR TURNBULL
AGAIN COMMITTEDProminent Physician Out on Probation Returned to Agnew.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Dr. Walter Turnbull, formerly in charge of the City and County Hospital, was sent to the State Hospital at Agnew yesterday for the second time, to be treated for alcoholic insanity. His original commitment to the hospital about a year ago was at his own request, in an effort to cure himself of the liquor habit. His return there yesterday was due to his breaking his parole by becoming intoxicated and threatening patients and attendants at a private sanatorium.

When Dr. Turnbull was placed at the head of the City and County Hospital he was considered a young man of unusual promise. His liking for intoxicants, which had bothered him since childhood, grew constantly, and at last he realized that he was in danger of losing his mind permanently.

IS YOUNG MAN.

This caused him to make application for commitment to the State Hospital, where he believed he would be cured of his falling. He is only 30 years of age, and looks strong and robust. So much improved had he become that when he applied for probation to be treated at a private sanatorium his request was granted.

Ten days ago Dr. Turnbull entered the local sanatorium, and until Saturday night he was contented to remain within doors. Then he asked for permission to go out to buy a paper, but failed to return. Yesterday morning he went back to the sanatorium in a taxicab and attacked a fellow patient. A hurry call to the O'Farrell street police station brought two patrolmen, who took him to the Central Emergency Hospital, whence he was returned to Agnew by an attendant from that place.

MEMBERS OF OLDEST
MASONIC LODGE VISIT

NEW YORK, July 10.—Three representatives of St. John's Lodge of Glasgow, Scotland, the oldest Masonic lodge in the world, arrived yesterday. Worshipful Master James Strang, Past Master Andrew Brown and Junior Warden John W. Dempster composed the party.

Brown brought with him the badge of his office, an exquisite gold chain. The central link of its forty golden shields and stars in the official seal of the lodge is the gift of Malcolm Canmore, King of the Scots, in the year 1067. The chain is insured for $2500, but its sentimental value is far above that price.

The Scots will remain in America six weeks. They will visit lodges in Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, Chicago and Detroit.

RICHARD BARHAM DIES.

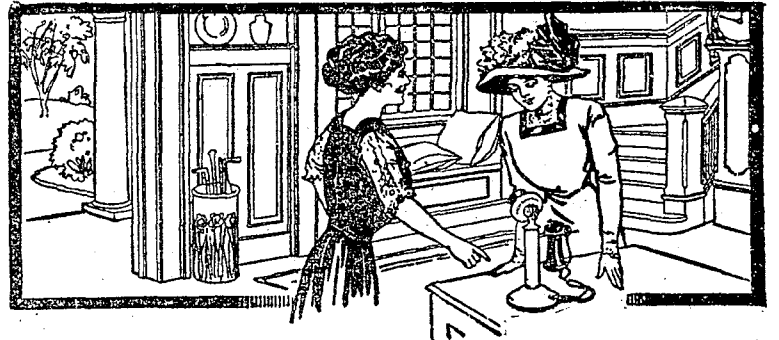

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—Richard M. Barham died at his home in this city yesterday morning after an illness of four months. Barham was the father of Guy Barham, resident of Los Angeles, who is now in Europe. Richard M. Barham came to California with his family in 1849. He is survived by a widow and four sons.
